CONSTRUCTION BEGINS ON NEW SCULPTURE FOR MANILOW PARK

The GSU Foundation announced recently that work has started on the 16th sculpture to be exhibited in the Nathan Manilow Sculpture Park.

Chicago sculptor Martin Puryear, has been commissioned by the Foundation to create a site-specific work in the field between "Prairie Chimes" and "Phoenix." Money specifically restricted to sculpture at the time it was given to the Foundation is being used to fund this project.

Puryear is a nationally respected artist who has had one-man exhibitions in Chicago, Nashville, Washington, D.C., Omaha, Dallas and Stockholm.

Educated at Yale, the Swedish Royal Academy of Art and the Catholic University of America, Puryear, in addition to his work at GSU, is currently creating major public sculptures for the cities of Philadelphia and New Orleans. His environmental sculpture on the GSU campus will consist of pathways, an arch, a bronze chair, two small bridges, concrete markers, etc. Puryear describes the work as "quiet" and suggests that, in an unobtrusive way, his creation "will evoke in the field a sense of the definition of a special space."

Our Apologies

For the first time since its inception, Landscapes did not meet its deadline. Mechanical failure was involved. As you can see, we still have problems. However, we are working our way toward normalcy. Please bear with us.
