Klutznick, Richardson to be Honored at GSU Commencement

Philip M. Klutznick

Elliot L. Richardson

Two internationally prominent lawyers-businessmen, whose aggregate public service to their respective states and the nation total some 70 years, will be honored with the degrees of Doctor of Humane Letters by GSU at the Thirteenth Annual Commencement exercises.

Philip M. Klutznick, who served in various federal government positions under seven presidents, will be honored on Saturday, June 4, during graduation ceremonies for BPA, CAS, and SHP.

Elliot L. Richardson, who held numerous presidential cabinet posts and ambassadorial assignments in the 1970s, will receive his degree on Sunday, June 5, along with graduates of HLD, BOG, and UWW.

Both honorees will deliver the principal address at their respective ceremonies, which will be held in the university gymnasium at 2 pm.

Nine hundred and five students who completed their degree work during the 1982-83 academic year will receive diplomas at the dual ceremonies. Bachelor's degrees will be awarded to 448, and 457 will receive master's degrees.

Klutznick is perhaps best known in the southern suburbs as the co-developer, along with Nathan Manilow, of Park Forest, Illinois. But he also has a long record of public service, beginning with his appointment by President Franklin

D. Roosevelt as commissioner of the Federal Housing Authority in 1944-46.

His interest in economic policy is reflected in his membership on the board of the National Bureau of Economic Research, and later, the Committee for Economic Development (CED). He was chairperson of the CED research and policy committee from 1970 to 1976, and has served as vice chairperson of the board since then.

Klutznick, who earned the law degree at Creighton University, is an executive member of the board of his alma mater and is on the board of Roosevelt University. He is a member of the advisory committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry and the board of Lyric Opera Co. of Chicago.

Elliot Richardson is a senior resident partner in the Washington office of Milbank, Tweed, Hadley and McCloy, New York law firm, which he joined in 1980. His assignments in government have included ambassador-at-large and special representative of the president to the Law of the Sea Conference; secretary of commerce; ambassador to the Court of St. James; attorney general; secretary of defense; secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and undersecretary of state.

assignments, he served the state of Massachusetts in a number of posts and practiced law. He was graduated cum laude from Harvard College in 1941 and earned the law degree cum laude from Harvard Law School in 1947, following service in the U.S. Army in World War II.

Richardson currently is chairperson of the Public Advisory Committee on the Law of the Sea and chairperson of the United Nations Association of the United States of America. His board and advisory committee memberships and the honors bestowed on him are legion.

Admission to commencement is by tickets issued to graduates and guests.

Third Annual SHP Student Recognition Dinner

John Lowe III, director of the School of Health Professions at GSU announces that the third annual SHP Student Recognition Dinner will be held on Friday, June 10, 1983, 7:30 pm at Mr. Benny's restaurant, Matteson.

Special recognition will be given to two outstanding students from each of the School's majors: Alcoholism Sciences, Allied Health Science Education, Communication Disorders, Health Services Administration, Medical Technology, and Nursing. GSU's Sievering to Speak at Two International Meetings

Herman Sievering, CAS professor of engineering science, will describe his six year research in pollution of large bodies of water at two international meetings of environmental scientists this summer.

Sievering has been selected by the National Research Council of the National Academy of Sciences to represent the U.S. research community at a meeting of European scientists to be held at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Research Triangle Park, Raleigh, North Carolina on June 6-9. He will make a similar presentation at Oxford University in England on August 29 - September 1.

Sievering is an acknowledged expert in the cause and effect of what is known as dry acid deposition; that is, pollution of soil and water directly from dry air. The more publicized aspect of such pollution is popularly called "acid rain," or the deposition of pollutants by way of rain, snow or fog.

The purpose of his appearance at these conferences, Sievering says, is to assist European scientists who have realized in the past two years that their acid rain monitoring networks are inadequate for measurement and monitoring of dry deposition on European soil and the sea surrounding the continent.

The meetings are cosponsored by the Environmental Protection Agency and the Commission on Atmospheric Chemistry and Global Pollution of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization International Science Association on Meteorology and Atmospheric Physics.

The Richton Park resident's research has taken him to the top of a 1,000 foot tower in Boulder, Colorado; on a research vessel on Lake Michigan and Lake Erie; and to the surface of the Atlantic Ocean at a lighthouse east of Miami.

Strukoff Listed in "Who's Who—American Music"

Dr. Rudolf Strukoff, professor of voice at GSU, has been chosen for listing in Who's Who in American Music for his contributions as a music educator, conductor, composer and bass soloist.

Strukoff, who is conductor of the GSU Community Chorale and recently prepared the Illinois Philharmonic Orchestra Chorus for Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, is a frequent soloist both on campus and throughout the metropolitan Chicago area. The Russian-born musician earned the B.M.E. degree at Andrews University and the M.M. and Ph.D. at Michigan State University.

He is a member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, the American Choral Directors Association and the National Association of Teachers of Singing.

Strukoff is a resident of Park Forest South, Illinois.

Summer Workshops in Computer Skills for Teachers

Elementary and secondary school teachers in the southern suburbs have the opportunity to learn computer skills necessary to prepare their students for the fast developing electronic age during "A Summer Institute on Computer Literacy," to be offered by GSU in June and July.

The summer institute, sponsored by the Office of Economic Education in BPA, will be divided into two courses, each carrying 3 hours of graduate credit for eligible participants. They are: "Microcomputer Applications for Elementary and Secondary Teachers," and "Microcomputer Applications for Business Education Skills Courses." They will be offered twice, June 20 - July 8 and July 11 - 29.

John Morton, director of the Office of Economic Education, notes that by the time this year's eighth graders graduate from high school, an estimated 75 percent of all jobs will be related to information processing. "The need is out there to teach the teachers now," he declares.

Robert Milam, BPA dean, adds, "What we are finding is that teachers are anxious to familiarize themselves with the many uses of microcomputers." Both administrators expect more than 100 to enroll in the summer courses.

Robert Gerencher, co-chair of the computer literacy committee at Homewood-Flossmoor High School, will be the instructor. He will work with elementary and secondary teachers with software appropriate to what they teach. Teachers in the business education skill course will work with word processing, electronic spreadsheets and other software designed for the business education curriculum. No previous knowledge of computers is necessary.

Tuition is $113.25, plus a $25 workshop fee. For more information, contact the Office of Economic Education at extension 2241.

GSU Students Named to "Who's Who for Colleges and Universities"

GSU recently held a special recognition assembly for 42 students who were named to the 1982-83 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities." GSUings . . .

Akkanad M. Isaac (BPA), presenting three papers at the Joint National Meeting of the Institute of Management Science (TIMS) and the Operations Research Society of America (ORSA) Chicago, April 25-27.

Joyce Newman (SP&CE), being appointed the GSU representative to the Northern Illinois Learning Resources Cooperative and representing GSU on a subcommittee, the Telecourse Advisory Group. Also, being elected to the board of Higher Education Cooperative for Illinois Telecommunications (HECIT), and serving as its membership chairperson. Joyce also has been appointed to represent upper division institutions in the planning and management of the Midwestern Regional Teleconference to be held in Chicago, October, 1983.

Tom Deem (CCR), being interviewed by Richard Sherman for the oral history of Prairie State College. Tom was associated with the opening of Prairie State in 1958 and was involved with a variety of services and activities through 1966, including establishment of the business curricula and teaching several different business courses.

Rudolf Strukoff (CAS), being inducted into "Who's Who in American Music" on the basis of his contributions as a music educator, conductor/composer and bass vocalist. Also, participating in "Career Day," at Rich East High School, April 24. Rudy talked to three groups of students on careers in music. On May 7 he moderated a discussion on "Nasal Resonance" for the Chicago Singing Teachers Guild at the American Conservatory of Music, Chicago.

Michael Lewis (HLD), and Judy Lewis being cited in a statement by the American Mental Health Counselors Association for presentation before the U.S. Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources hearings regarding preventive medicine and health promotion.

President Leo Goodman-Malamuth and Shedrick Tillman (OR) serving as panel moderators, and Mwallmu D. R. Burgest (HLD), being a panelist at the Illinois State University conference on Strategies for Improving the Status of Blacks in Post-Secondary Education, May 25-27.

A certificate of appreciation is presented to President Leo Goodman-Malamuth, left, for his address about GSU to the Kiwanis Club of Homewood-Flossmoor. Don Clark, president of the club, makes the presentation.

The article by Daniel Bernd in the two latest issues of Inscapes reminded me of some thoughts I've had about what's happened to our language lately. Not only do we have surplus and erroneous titles for people or things, we are using more and more verbiage to describe less and less.

Of course, I am neither a "University Professor," nor a "Community" one and I could be out of my depth, but I can't help bringing up such examples as signage, preventative or orientated.

Signage is not a bit clearer, just shorter than "directional signs," and besides that, it sounds dumb. I'd much rather be "oriented" than orientated, and "preventive" medicine sounds just fine to me.

We seem to be on a kick to use, in our oral or written language, as many of the 26 letters of the alphabet as we can. I suppose the hope is that our verbosity can't be converted to computerese.

As to terminology: did anyone ever stop to think that we can't be "happy and gay"? Just "happy" or heavens knows what people might think! One can't be gentle as a pussycat, either, considering what "pussy" means these days. What do we call those furry little buds that blossom in spring on willow bushes? Kittenwillow catkins? And, dear me, there had better not, as in the old English song, be a "fairy in the garden!"

These are minor musings, of course, not really important in the vast nuclear scheme of things. Yet, if we all expressed ourselves with less regard for showing off our vocabulary, our message might get through more easily at all levels, and that means in our intercourse (how do I mean that?) among nations as well.
