Freeman Named Dean of New GSU College of Education

Dr. Lawrence D. Freeman, formerly manager of teacher education program approval of the Illinois State Board of Education (ISBE), has been named dean of the new College of Education at GSU according to Dr. Leo Goodman-Malamuth II, president.

When Freeman reports for duty August 22, he will head a faculty of approximately 35 professors divided into the Division of Education and Division of Psychology and Counseling. The new college was formed in the recently completed curriculum realignment at GSU. The functions of the former College of Human Learning and Development were divided among the Colleges of Education, Arts and Sciences and Business and Public Administration and the School of Health Professions.

Freeman is no stranger to Governors State. Since his appointment to the ISBE in 1974, he has been closely associated with GSU officials in the approval of teacher education programs at the university.

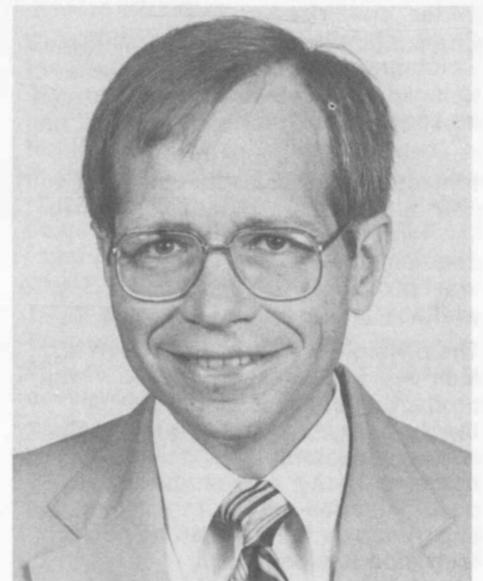

"I see a great deal of potential for Governors State," Freeman said. "But I am particularly excited about the opportunities presented by a new college, especially in view of the fact that very few colleges of education have been created in recent years. There are some 100 public school districts and a half dozen or more community colleges in the university's immediate sphere of influence. I look forward to working with them in new ways to improve the training of teachers and staff development."

Freeman comes to his post with an educational background including four years at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, first as co-director of the Nebraska Confederation of Early Childhood Education, then as associate director of the Study Commission on Undergraduate Education and the Education of Teachers.

He served on the faculty of State University of New York at Binghamton as an assistant professor of English in 1968-70 and was an instructor of English at University of Nebraska-Lincoln, 1965-68. He earned the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in English from the University of Nebraska and the B.A. from North Park College in Chicago.

Freeman is much sought after as an educational consultant, having worked with such organizations as the United States Office of Education, American Bar Association, American Indian Higher Education Consortium and the Association of American Colleges of Teacher Education. He is a frequent speaker at state and national educational meetings and is widely published in books and professional journals.

Dr. Lawrence D. Freeman

New Division of Communication Formed

A new Division of Communication in CAS, encompassing 13 faculty members and more than 200 students, has been formed at GSU as the result of the recent curriculum and administrative realignment.

The new division, formed by the consolidation of programs and faculty previously included in CAS and the former CHLD, (now the College of Education) offers undergraduate and graduate degrees in interpersonal communication and media communications. An undergraduate degree in photography also will be offered for the first time. Graduate studies involving photography will continue to be included within the media communications major.

In addition, a master's degree will be offered in instructional training and technology, formerly called educational technology. The name change reflects recommendations of an advisory committee, comprised of 27 of Chicagoland's leading companies, which proposed a curriculum designed to serve business and industry as well as education.

The division schedule for the fall trimester (GSU advance registration is now in progress) includes 58 classes. Ten faculty members hold Ph.D. degrees, and two others hold the Master of Fine Arts, the highest degree available in the field of photography.

The division is chaired by Melvyn M. Muchnik, whose expertise is in media, production and law. Linda Steiner teaches journalism, media research and issues. Marian Marzynski is a noted filmmaker who produced two documentaries— "Return to Poland" and "Warsaw File"—seen on public television this past year.

Temmie Gilbert, formerly in creative dramatics and well known for her work in children's theatre in the southern suburbs, joins the division to teach classes in children and media, and creative processes.

Paul Schranz, whose photography has been exhibited throughout the country, will continue to teach photography at the undergraduate level and media communications at the graduate level.

Jay Boersma, whose special emphasis has been documentary photography, will continue in that area. Some of his photos were included in a recent exhibit at the Chicago Art Institute.

Michael Purdy brings to the new division his expertise in concepts of human communication, listening and persuasion.

Young Kim specializes in intercultural communication and research. She is editor of "Internal and Intercultural Yearbook" and book review editor and member of the editorial board of three other professional journals.

Ana Kong, a member of the Illinois Commission on the Status of Women, will continue to teach courses in research and advertising.

Joyce Kennedy, former director of a project in vocational training at GSU, will teach group and organizational communication, as will Roy Cogdell, former HLD dean.

Michael Stelnicki and Kenneth Silber are the faculty for instructional training and technology. Stelnicki will offer a number of film seminars as well as courses in psychological principles of message design and training techniques. Silber will concentrate on performance appraisal, cost effectiveness in training and the development of training courses. Both men have been active in the American Society of Training and Development and the National Society for Performance and Instruction.

Previously enrolled students at GSU will have the option of completing the degree requirements of their former majors within a two year period or choosing the new degree requirements in effect this fall.

For additional information about the new division, call Muchnik at (312) 534-5000, extension 2518. Advance registration will continue through August 15. August 5 is the deadline for application and credentials for degree-seeking students. Classes begin on August 29.

GSU'S President Heads Hospital Board

Leo Goodman-Malamuth II was recently elected president of the South Suburban hospital board of directors for the 1983-84 year.

Goodman-Malamuth succeeds Lyle Schaffer.

Other officers elected were Dr. Marvin Morrison, first vice-president; John Kaindl, second vice-president; Edmund Urban, secretary, and Donald Pizza, treasurer.

Goodman-Malamuth is president of GSU, a position he has held since 1976. Previously, he was vice-president for academic affairs and chief academic officer at California State University in Long Beach, where he also held various positions in the department of speech.

He earned his bachelor's and master's degrees at the University of Southern California and was awarded his doctorate in speech pathology and communication by that university in 1956.

The new board president's professional memberships include the American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Association of University Administrators, American Speech Communication Association and the American Speech and Hearing Association.

He has been elected to Phi Kappa Phi, national scholastic honorary society, and is listed in "The Compendium," persons of eminence in exceptional education.

A UNIVERSITY RELATIONS PUBLICATION

Director: William H. Dodd
Publications Director: Joan B. Lewis
Publications Editor: Betty A Kott

GSU Landscapes is produced by the Office of University Relations, Governors State University, Park Forest South, Illinois 60466 and is the university's official bi-weekly publication. The title and logo are derived from "Illinois Landscapes No. 5," a sculpture by John Henry which is located in the Nathan Manilow Sculpture Park at GSU.

The next issue of Landscapes/Inscapes will be published on July 29, 1983. Deadline for copy to be included in that issue is Tuesday, July 26.

For Sale - Used Books

Governors State University Foundation is having a used book sale on August 23 and 24 in the Hall of Governors. The sale, which is open to the public, will be held from 12 noon until 8 pm on both days.

Over 3,000 titles on subjects ranging from art to zoology will be available for inspection and purchase by canny collectors and bibliophiles as well as the casual reader. The books have been accumulated over an eighteen-month period from donations to the Foundation which were not added to the Library collection either because they were duplicates of titles already owned or were not appropriate to the curriculum offered by the university. Selections range from the scholarly and esoteric to popular fiction and children's books. Some record albums, filmstrips, and periodicals will also be available.

According to Claire Oaks, UL, proceeds from the sale will be deposited to the Foundation's library account and will be used to purchase needed library materials and equipment.

GSU Quarterly Draws Critical Praise

Creative Woman, the GSU quarterly magazine, drew praise recently for its Spring-Summer issue which examines the male role in the changing context of female-male relationships. Most of the articles were written by male authors.

Joanne Zerkel, feature writer for the Suburban Star newspaper chain comments, "... I read (the) magazine word for word, page by page, cover to cover. It was exhilarating and made more so because the magazine is a product of the south suburbs, Governors State University's Creative Woman.

The quarterly contains fiction, articles, photography, poetry, book reviews and graphics. Helen Hughes, CE professor of psychology as editor works with an advisory board composed of women in many fields of endeavor. Past issues have covered women's achievements in many fields such as art, law, sailing, ecology, the American frontier, science, etc.

The yearly subscription fee for Creative Woman, published under the auspices of the provost's office, is $7.00. A fund has also been established for the magazine by the GSU Foundation and donations are accepted. Further information can be obtained by telephoning GSU at 534-5000, extension 2122.

Piano Teaching is Subject of GSU Seminar

A special seminar designed for teachers of piano will be offered by GSU on Aug. 3-5. Donald Beattie, director of group and class piano pedagogy at Southern Illinois University, will introduce instructors to new teaching approaches.

"The Great Pianists Seminar" is unique, according to Beattie, in that it takes an interdisciplinary approach to teaching keyboard. "Focus will be on keyboard and the relevant issues in education, psychology and philosophy as applied to piano pedagogy," he says.

Folksongs, contemporary and classical literature will be explored applying the methods of Kodaly, Dalcroze and Solfeggio to enhance the goals of playing by ear, transposing, improvising and composing. Participants will study experiential learning, self-concept development and group dynamics as they apply to motivating students to greater artistry.

Beattie is cofounder of piano pedagogy programs at SIU. He holds the BM degree from the University of Colorado and is working on the Ph.D. in educational psychology. He has authored four volumes of piano music for beginners and presently is producing a film documentary entitled "Lighting the Road to Excellence: A New-Age Model of Instruction for Piano Class."

The cost for the two credit hour seminar is $123 for graduate students, $116 for undergraduates, and $40 for noncredit participants.

For further information, call Christine Cochrane in the Office of Special Programs and Continuing Education, extension 2549.

Rank at GSU

I would like to express agreement with Professor Daniel Bernd's suggestion that we adopt rank at GSU, with the modification that we first seek official approval of the administration and the Board, and that we separate rank and tenure.

Rank and tenure should be separated because, for example, it would be unfair to deny full professorships to those among us who do not have tenure at GSU but have held tenured full professorships elsewhere.

A change to rank would also have to be negotiated with the faculty union, to work out the details of the salary range at each rank and to determine the minimum qualifications for each rank.

I hope that the faculty at GSU will support such a move, as I believe that having faculty rank would be beneficial to both the institution and the faculty members as individuals. GSU would gain in that it would attain greater acceptance in the community, and individual faculty with relatively low salaries would be afforded the opportunity to raise salaries through promotions.
