GSU-Community Band Presents Fall Concert

The Community Symphonic Band of GSU under the direction of Charles Hicks, will present its annual fall concert on Sunday, November 20, at 4 pm in the University Theatre. The public is invited free of charge.

Forty-five musicians from 16 southern suburbs and Chicago make up the Symphonic Band. They are in their second season under Hicks' baton, he joined GSU in 1982 as professor of music.

The program will have an international flavor, ranging from Russian opera to American folk lore. Mark Hindsley, director emeritus of University of Illinois bands, arranged the overture to "Ruslan and Ludmilla," by Glinka. "Toccata," by the Italian, Frescobaldi, was arranged for band by Slocum. British composer Ralph Vaughan Williams used English sea lore for his "Sea Songs." For the final number of the first half of the program, Clare Grundman wove four American folk songs into his "American Folk Rhapsody No. 1."

After intermission, trumpet soloist Joseph Zawistowski, of Beecher, will be accompanied by the band in the "Quixote," by Klein/Koff, inspired by Cervantes' fictional hero. France is represented by "Pas Redouble," by Saint-Saens and arranged by Frackenpohl. The final three works are by Americans: "His Honor March," by Fillmore; "West Side Story Selections," by Bernstein, arranged by Duthoit; and "Rushmore," by Reed.

Also, Hazel Crest—Scott Fishman; Homewood—Bruce Artwohl, Robert Hind- sley, Kent Lemmon, Glenn Swanson; Maurice Wright; Kankakee—James Henry III, Scott LeCount, Tom Reilly; Lansing—Martin Lamkin; Matteson—Carl Davis; Park Forest—James Cribbs, Glen Ellison, Albert Piggush, Gene Smith, Donald Wiley, Joe Williams; Park Forest South David Weinberger; Peotone—George Kwain; St. Anne—Joseph Lenart; South Holland—Don Fredrickson, Lyle Hopkins; and Steger—Debra Ahrens.

Conference for Early Childhood Administrators

Marilyn M. Smith, executive director of the National Association for the Education of Young Children, will deliver the keynote address at a special all-day conference for early childhood administrators at GSU Friday, Dec. 2.

Smith is one of seven professionals who will discuss a wide variety of topics concerning owners, operators and teachers of day care centers and similar child care facilities. After the 9 am keynote address six concurrent workshops will be held from 10:30 until noon and repeated after lunch until about 3:15.

Lana Hostetler, instructor at Lincolnland Community College and past president of Illinois Association for Education of Young Children, will discuss "Public Policy, the Law and the Early Childhood Professional." She also is chair of the Statewide Day Care Advisory Council.

Heather Harder, executive director, Small World Care Centers in northeastern Indiana, will present "Creative Financing for the Early Childhood Owner/Director." Joanne Scopelite, director of Flossmoor Community Weekday Pre-school, will lead a session on "Giving Your Playgrounds a Facelift."

Sharon McDaniel Sheehan, Indiana coordinator, C.S.R., Inc., will chair a session on "Madison Avenue Meets Early Childhood Education: Marketing Your Program." Dora Fowler, executive director of Elk Grove Township Community Day Care Center, will talk about "Getting Organized."

The final workshop will be "Supervision and Teaching Styles," by Lorraine Wallach, associate dean, Erickson Institute.

Reservation deadline is Nov. 22. Cost is $25, including lunch and materials. For further information, call the Office of Conferences and Workshops at GSU at (312) 534-5000, extension 2436.

The workshop is sponsored by the South Suburban Association for the Education of Young Children, the GSU College of Education and the Office of Conferences & Workshops.

Three Computer Courses Offered For Teachers

Three courses specifically designed to help elementary and secondary teachers use computers in the classroom will be offered by GSU during the winter trimester beginning in January.

All three courses, available for 3 graduate credit hours each, will be taught in the GSU Computer Laboratory using Apple I computers. Sponsored by the Office of Economic Education and funded in part by an adult vocational and technical grant, each eligible teacher will receive a stipend of $25 per course to help defray expenses.

"Seminar in Business Education: Microcomputers" will familiarize elementary and secondary teachers with microcomputer hardware and software. The course includes an introduction to BASIC computer language. Two sections of this course will be offered from 4:30—7:30 pm and 7:30—10:30 pm on Mondays from Jan. 9 through April 16. A third section will be held on Thursdays from 4:30—7:30 pm from Jan. 12 through April 19.

"BASIC for Teachers" covers more advanced programming concepts, including nested loops, subscripted variables, subroutines, functions, graphics and disk operating system file management. It will be taught at 4:30—7:30 pm on Tuesdays from Jan. 10 through April 17.

In the third course, "Word Processing and VisiCalc for Teachers" students will learn to use word processing and electronic spreadsheets. It will be taught at 4:30—7:30 pm on Wednesdays from Jan. 11 through April 18.

Instructors will be Robert Gerencher, co-chair of the Computer Literacy Committee of Homewood-Flossmoor High School, and Julie Knott, BPA university lecturer.

Teachers receiving the $25 grant will be required to write a description of how they plan to use microcomputers in the classroom.

Cost of each course will be $143.75, minus the teacher stipend. To reserve a place in each course before Dec. 16, call the GSU Office of Economic Education at (312) 534-5000, extension 2141.

Schranz Set For Lecture Series

Paul Schranz, CAS professor of photography at GSU will lecture on "A Sense of Place" on Wednesday, Nov. 23, at 7:00 pm in the Media Dome.

The free lecture is part of the monthly series sponsored by the Infinity Photographers Association, a student organization.

Schranz, a resident of Peotone, has been on the faculty since 1973. He is responsible for building the GSU permanent photo collection of more than 700 pieces into one of the largest and most significant collections in this area. He is not only an educator, but also a successful professional photographer and owner of his own shop in Flossmoor.

This is the final lecture of the fall trimester. They will resume in 1984 on Jan. 20, when Barbara Karant will discuss "Architectural Interiors."

Adult Children of Alcoholics Focus of GSU Seminar

Problems faced by adult children of alcoholics will be the focus of a special workshop at GSU on Wednesday, Nov. 16 at 7:30 pm in Engbretson Hall. It is free to the public.

Sponsored by the Alcoholism Sciences Club, a student organization, the meeting will feature four professionals. Jan Lechner, of the South Suburban Council on Alcoholism, will be moderator. Ann Fry, university professor of alcoholism sciences at GSU, will discuss family dynamics, characteristics of the adult children of alcoholics and treatment options.

Richard Carter, a representative of alcoholics self-help groups, will explain what those groups are and how to start one where needed.

James Van Doven, chairman of the Illinois Coalition on Children of Alcoholics, will talk about the role that organization plays in helping older children.

GSU Art Gallery Offers Varied Fare

The art gallery of GSU will offer two free exhibits between now and the end of this year.

The oil paintings of graduate student Marie Weaver, Momence, will be on display until Nov. 16. The exhibit is entitled "Castlescapes."

From Nov. 22 until Dec. 9, the gallery will feature the prints of Sydney Drum, CAS university lecturer in printmaking/graphic design. There will be 13 works dating from 1976 to 1982, the majority of them from the last two years. Drum's work has been exhibited in the U. S., Canada and abroad. She has contributed to several public collections, among them the New York Museum of Modern Art and the Philadelphia Museum of Art.

The artist's reception will be on Tuesday, Nov. 22 at 7 pm in the CAS lounge. Gallery hours are 11:30 am—3:30 pm Monday through Thursday.

Landscapes Observes Holiday

Due to the Thanksgiving holiday, there will be no Landscapes for the week of November 21. Publication will resume on the next regularly scheduled date, December 9, 1983.

Jazz Groups Present Free Concert

Fifteen student jazzmen from GSU will display their talents in a free concert on Thursday, Nov. 17, at 7:30 pm in Music Recital Hall.

The 15-member Jazz Ensemble will be under the direction of Warrick Carter, CAS professor of music and chairperson of the Division of Fine and Performing Arts. The six-man jazz combo will play under the direction of Ken Chaney, community professor of music and keyboard artist in his own right.

Both groups will play contemporary jazz numbers. The musicians include: Rhythm—Val Nicholson, Bill Graeder, Eric Scott, Lou Curalli and Roger Pampel; saxophones—Herman Waterford, Frank Abrahams, Kent Lemmon, Minor Davis and Bill Elliott; trumpets—Mark Thomas, Camuel Cross, Al Brodie, Marvin Davis and Johnny Britt. Several of the musicians play two or more instruments.

GSU's musicians have established themselves in the forefront of collegiate jazz-makers during the past decade. They have won a long list of prizes, both individually and collectively, at major college and international jazz festivals and have toured in the Orient and South America.

GSU Alumnae Publish Test

Two graduates of the SHP Division of Communication Disorders at GSU have published a clinical test for use by professional Speech-Language Pathologists. The test is called the Joliet 3-Minute Speech and Language Screen, and was developed by Mary C. Kinzler and Constance Cowing-Johnson.

With this test a clinician can identify children in the second and fifth grades who are in need of more extensive evaluation for disorders of articulation, language, voice, and fluency.

Kinzler and Cowing-Johnson received the Master of Health Science degree in Communication Disorders in 1979. Both hold the Certificate of Clinical Competence in speech-language pathology, and are employed as Speech-Language Pathologists by the Joliet Public Schools.

Women's Center Collects Food For Needy

Women's Resource Center is seeking donations for its second annual holiday season food drive.

"The Center makes frequent referrals to local food dispersing organizations throughout the year," says Dr. Harriet Gross, of the center. "We feel obliged to replenish what has been given so that we may continue to refer the needy who come to us for help."

Those who wish to contribute packaged and/or canned foods may drop them off prior to Dec. 10 at the Womens Resource Center in Room E1603 or call extension 2435.
