Gilbert wins 3rd Emmy

Professor Temmie Gilbert has won her third Emmy Award. The Midwest Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences presented the award at its annual banquet Oct. 5 in Chicago.

Professor Gilbert won for "her achievements in excellence" in the children's special category. The academy recognized her work as on-line producer for "Odd Potato," a show funded and produced by WGN-TV Channel 9 and the Chicago Board of Rabbis.

The show was first aired in December 1989. It will be shown again this December.

The half-hour drama with music is the story of a young Jewish girl whose family is about to celebrate its first Hanukkah since her mother died. The

GSU featured on national TV

Telequizzing at Governors State University will be featured on the ABC-TV program "Good Morning America."

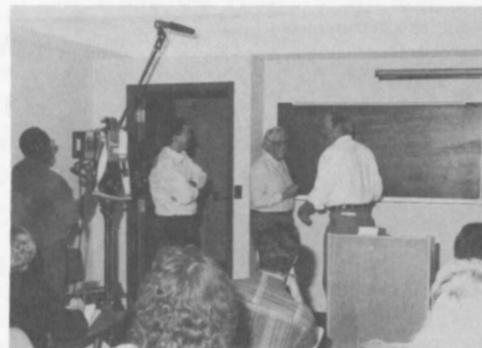

A crew from the program spent eight hours on campus Oct. 10 taping interviews with students and staff for the segment.

Producer Bill Cunningham said he read about telequizzing in the Sunday, Sept. 23, editions of the Chicago Tribune while he was on assignment in Toronto.

Cunningham, whose regular beat is interviewing Hollywood stars, said he told the assignment editor he wanted to do the telequizzing feature because it was the kind of story "Good Morning America" viewers would be interested in. It combines education and technology, he said.

Cunningham, who had worked at ABC-TV's Channel 7 in Chicago for three years before moving to Los Angeles, combined his trip to the Chicago area with a regular assignment. On Oct. 9, he interviewed Robert DeNiro, Ron Howard and others who were filming a movie in Oak Park.

At GSU, the crew filmed Professor Don Fricker of the College of Business and Public Administration and Dr. Suzanne Prescott of the College of Education on their work in developing the telequiz that allows students to take tests using their touch-tone phones. Their answers are recorded on a computer.

Dr. Dan Bernd (second from right) gets instructions from the "Good Morning America" crew members.

16-year employee wins Civil Service Scholarship

Bethany Harms, a 16-year employee of the Business Office, is the winner of the fall trimester Civil Service Scholarship.

She will use her prize for accounting textbooks. "I am really thrilled to have been selected. It had been a while since I submitted my letter, and I had forgotten about it. So it was a shock when I got the check," she said.

Her incentive to return to school was a job promotion. "My major decision to take courses was in the early stages here. I was an accounting clerk and the only GSU President Leo Goodman-Malamuth II was interviewed, as was Dr. Dan Bernd of the College of Arts and Sciences who is opposed to the use of computers as teaching tools.

The crew also interviewed five students who have used the telequiz. They were all enthusiastic about telequizzing, although they said the system needed some refinements.

OCW coordinator finds 'all things possible'

By Roxane Geraci-Roche

Imagine what it would be like to travel back to another era in German or Italian history, or to find out what black holes, quasars and the universe are all about.

Think about the lessons to be learned in these global times by studying the Japanese language and culture, or information to be discovered by studying the research on children with drinking problems.

Thanks to Dr. Dominic Candeloro, continuing education coordinator in the Office of Conferences and Workshops, these topics as well as many others, are available for the Governors State University community.

Candeloro says he immediately liked the friendly and informal atmosphere when he arrived during the organization of the Office of Conferences and Workshops in 1983.

"I was intrigued by the experimental aspect and the flexibility," he says of GSU, adding that he really finds the work exciting because "all kinds of things are possible."

Working as coordinator for OCW, Candeloro has made quite a few things possible, including Weekend College. After implementing the program over a year ago, Candeloro says not only are the Friday night and Saturday morning and afternoon classes successful but also the response has been overwhelming.

Looking at some of the other programs offered by OCW, there is no doubt there is a wide variety to choose from. When reviewing the OCW schedule, one notices several history offerings are available—perhaps a reflection of Candeloro's love of history.

With a passion for chronicling the past, Candeloro graduated from Northwestern University with a bachelor's degree in history and teaching. He went on to receive a master's degree and a doctoral degree in history from the University of Illinois at Urbana.

Growing up with parents who emigrated to the United States from Italy, Candeloro not only has studied the history of Italians in America but also has become deeply involved in projects and organizations concerning his ethnic roots. In fact he is a noted expert on Italian-American history.

In 1977, Candeloro served as a visiting assistant professor at the U of I Chicago and became director of the "Italians in Chicago" project funded by a $300,000 National Endowment for the Humanities grant.

After successfully completing the project in 1982, Candeloro was awarded a Fulbright Research Fellowship in Italy and spent six months there with his family.

Among his other ties and activities related to his Italian heritage, Candeloro has published "Suburban (Small Town) Italians: Chicago Heights, 1880-1975," and "Ethnic Chicago" extensive articles that have since been included in books.

He shares his love of all things Italian as the host of "Ciao, South Suburbia," broadcast Sundays on WCGO-Radio in Chicago Heights.

Although he enjoys his involvement in Italian heritage activities and is delighted over the strides and accomplishments he's made in OCW, Candeloro has a yearning to become more involved in teaching. He's taught history at Hales Franciscan High School in Chicago, at UIC and GSU. Candeloro knows he really likes reaching out to

Soviet scientist guest lecturer at GSU on Nov. 16

Soviet scientist Dr. Slava Lapin will discuss "Has Perestroika a Future? A View From the Inside" at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 16 in the Music Recital Hall. His lecture is being sponsored by South Suburban SANE/FREEZE and the GSU Foundation. There is a $2 charge.

Dr. Lapin, a visiting scientist at the National Institutes of Health, is a personal friend of dissident Andrei Sakharov, and believes Sakharov's work for change in the Soviet Union was the precursor to changes by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

He has given this lecture several times since his arrival in the United States in May. He is the guest of Dr. Helen Hughes while in the Chicago area. For more information contact Dr. Hughes on extension 2524.

Over 2,000 teachers to attend conference at GSU

More than 2,000 teachers will be on campus Friday and Saturday, Nov. 2 and 3, for the Illinois Science Teachers Association meeting. "Science in the 90's: Bridges to the Future" will involve teachers in all areas of the GSU building. Teachers will also be walking through the sculpture park and touring the grounds.

Library staff will retire card catalog on Oct. 31

The library staff will be holding a wake for the GSU card catalog at 2:30 p.m. Oct. 31. The card catalog, which has served us well for 18 years, will be retired. The material on the more than 2 million catalog cards will now be generated on computer that will allow GSU Library patrons to search not only through the GSU collection, but through materials in more than 800 Illinois libraries.

GSU Child Care Program holds open house Oct. 29

The staff at the GSU Child Care Program invites all GSU staff members and their children to an open house Monday, Oct. 29. Guests are welcome at the Hantack House between 9 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. or 3 to 8 p.m. Guests will have a chance to observe students in their daily activities. Members of the Child Care Program Advisory Board will also be available to talk with guests.

'Stop smoking' clinics will continue to be offered

The Personnel Office is taking names through Nov. 9 of GSU staff members who are interested in participating in the "stop smoking" clinics. Two clinics have been given by nurses from the Park Forest Health Department. Barbara Clark, director of personnel, said additional smoking cessation clinics will be given as university funding permits.

Details of long-term care insurance to be explained

Hospital costs are very high these days. But once you're discharged, the additional costs of home care or nursing home care can be just as expensive.

The State of Illinois is offering employees an optional long-term care insurance plan starting Jan. 1, 1991 to cover these costs.

You are invited to a Nov. 8 meeting to learn the details. Representatives of Travelers Insurance Co. will explain the benefits and payment schedule. There will be two sessions, 9 a.m. and 10 a.m., in the Hall of Honors. For details call the Personnel Office at extension 2194.

story depicts the family's struggles with their sorrows and how the traditional lighting of the Hanukkah menorah brings the family together.

GSU alumnus Steve Carlin worked as a production assistant on this project.

The Chicago Chapter of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences has presented Professor Gilbert with two Emmys. In 1988, she won for her work as producer of the NBC-TV special "Nothing Is Simple." The show dealt with interracial dating. In 1987, the media communications professor won an Emmy for her weekly Sunday morning children's show "The Magic Door" on CBS-TV.

Professor Gilbert has been on the GSU staff since 1974.

students and contributing to their knowledge of historical events.

"I enjoy dealing with the adult students, and it's great seeing our graduates going out and becoming successful in our own community," he says. "GSU really has a great future."

Outside of the university, Candeloro likes to play racquetball. He lives in Chicago Heights with his wife, Carol, and three children, Anne, Gina, and Nicky.

me. He tells me I can have a career in accounting."

The Civil Service Scholarship is given each trimester to an employee or dependent attending GSU or any other accredited university. The undergraduate student must have at least a "C" average. Eligibility is open to civil service employees with at least two years service, or their dependents who are 23 years old or younger.

Applications should be accompanied by a transcript and the student's one-page essay describing educational and career goals. The winter trimester deadline is Nov. 16. Applications are available from Fran Lindsay in the Personnel Office. For information on the scholarship, contact Marilyn Thomas, chairperson of the scholarship committee, on extension 2122.

Governors State University's non-royalty are Linda Smith of the University Library staff and Rich Cast of the Mailroom staff. They were crowned during non-homecoming festivities Oct. 12.
