University's impact on region is significant, study shows

A new "Economic Impact Study" recently released by Governors State University shows that the institution added $54.2 million to the level of economic activity of the region in 1983-84.

The study also shows that this activity was responsible for the creation of approximately 3,400 jobs during the same period.

Prepared by Ira Neal, research associate in the Office of Administration and Planning, the report concludes that "the existence of Governors State University has significant effect on the economy of the suburban/metropolitan area which it serves."

The study defines the university's economic region as the geographic area within a 25-mile radius of the main campus.

Neal said the institution contributes to the economic activity of the region by bringing in outside funds which are used to operate the university, by bringing in non-resident students who spend within the region, and by employing faculty and staff who live and spend within the region.

"A conservative estimate indicates that the combined effect of these three factors probably resulted in expenditures of at least $27.1 million," he said.

Neal explained that each dollar of actual expenditure eventually increases the level of economic activity in the region by twice that amount. He referred to this stimulus as "the multiplier process."

"Whenever the university sells its services outside the region or causes new funds to be drawn into the region, new spending is generated," he said. "This new spending creates new income within the GSU economic region. These new incomes in turn will be respent and create more or increased incomes."

Neal said the study discusses only the "short-run" impact of the university on the economic activity of the region. "The university was not established to provide dollars for the local economy," he said, explaining that the study makes no attempt to measure the economic impact of the educational process itself.

"Furthermore," he continued, "no attempt is made to calculate the effect on property tax, public schools, and other municipal services the university, its faculty and staff, and students have on the region."

The study shows that the university spent approximately $19 million in 1983-84, of which $13.4 million was paid in salaries, $400,000 in scholarship assistance to students, and $5.2 million on goods and services. Of the latter amount, approximately 90 percent was spent within the region, the study reports.

The study further shows that the university employed 491 faculty and staff full-time and 984 part-time during the same period. Salary expenditures compute to approximately $19,600 per full-time-equivalent staff member, the report states.

A summary chart in the study shows that within-the-region expenditures for 1983-84 amounted to approximately $2.7 million on housing and $5.4 million on non-housing by faculty and staff, approximately $6.8 million on housing and $5 million on non-housing by students, and approximately $4.7 million on non-housing by the university itself.

Neal said approximately $24 million in outside-the-region money was brought into the region as a result of the university. The amount includes a State of Illinois educational appropriation of $17.8 million, $700,000 in non-appropriated support for plant operations, $1.5 million in state grants and contracts, state and federal financial aid of $1.2 million, and $3.3 million in tuition and other expenditures by students who do not reside in the region.

An interesting sideline of the study is information regarding the student population of the institution. The report shows that undergraduate students average 34 years of age and graduate students average 39 years. Approximately 58 percent of the students are enrolled on a part-time basis, the study shows.

A survey conducted in connection with preparation of the study shows that 24 percent of the students rent housing, 59 percent own their own homes, and 17 percent live with parents. The survey also shows that 44 percent are married students, 35 percent are single and independent, and 21 percent are single but dependent.

College of Education programs are certified

Three teacher certification programs at Governors State University have been recommended for continued approval by the Illinois Superintendent of Education.

According to Dr. Lawrence Freeman, dean of the university's College of Education, the State Teachers Certification Board has recommended that the teacher certification programs in education, English and business be approved by the superintendent.

Dr. Freeman said programs in biology and chemistry were approved earlier.

"This brings to an end a 10-year review of the teacher certification programs at Governors State," Dr. Freeman said.

Illinois senate honors CBPA professor Marilyn Hart

A professor of management at Governors State University has been honored by a resolution of the Illinois State Senate.

Professor Marilyn Hart of the College of Business and Public Administration (CBPA) was recognized in the resolution introduced by Sen. Aldo A. DeAngelis (R-Olympia Fields) and Sen. Richard F. Kelly Jr. (D-Hazel Crest).

The senators have been students of Professor Hart in courses leading to master's degrees.

Both Professor Hart and her husband, Dr. Robert F. Hart who also is a CBPA professor, will be leaving Governors State at the end of the spring/summer trimester to assume positions with the University of Wisconsin system.

The resolution states that "Marilyn Hart and her husband, Robert, also a professor, have acquired an outstanding reputation in the field of statistics, and have conducted numerous seminars in the private sector, enhancing the technical skills of many individuals who have been privileged to enroll in their course of study."

Seminars in topics related to statistics and quality control have gained national and international reputations for the Harts.

The resolution further states that "among the myriad of students of Professor Hart through the years were our distinguished colleagues, State Senators Aldo DeAngelis and Richard Kelly, who are proud to have completed a course of study in Statistics of Management while seeking to earn master's degrees at Governors State University."

Sen. Kelly already holds a baccalaureate degree from the university.

"Professor Marilyn Hart truly exemplifies the highest degree of ability, integrity and tireless devotion to the teaching profession that is worthy of emulation by all who serve the educational system of this state," the resolution continues.

"Therefore, be it resolved, by the Senate of the 84th General Assembly of the State of Illinois, that we express to Professor Marilyn Hart our strongest appreciation for her outstanding contribution to quality education in this state, and that we especially commend her for the span of service that she devoted to Governors State University."

Professor Hart was employed at Moraine Valley Community College from 1976 until joining the Governors State faculty in 1980.

She received the bachelor of science and master of science degrees from the University of Illinois at Chicago in 1972 and 1974 respectively, both in mathematics. A second master of science degree was received from the Illinois Institute of Technology in 1982, with emphasis in operations research.

Computer workshops for business users offered

Potential users of personal computers who have been looking for concentrated, inexpensive training sessions to get started can likely find what they need during the new Summer Computer Institute offered during the next five weeks at Governors State University, according to Peg Donohue, director of the university's Office of Conferences and Workshops.

"These special, noncredit courses are designed for financial planners, accountants, lawyers, market and sales analysts, manufacturing executives, secretaries, office managers, small business owners and academics—just about anybody who would benefit from the use of a computer," Donohue says.

"They will help users get started in computer packages that can simplify recordkeeping, mailing, market research and business report writing," adds Dominic Candeloro, coordinator for the Institute. Experienced computer specialists teach the classes, which vary from two all-day sessions to two or three hour sessions for four or five days. "We have kept the cost as low as possible. We offer 10 percent discounts for more than two registrations for a course from the same company or registration for more than one course from the same company or individual," Candeloro discloses.

Saturday courses are IBM orientated. All others are Apple orientated. Because enrollment is limited by the number of computers in the lab, early registration is encouraged, the coordinator advises.

The schedule of courses and fees is:

August 1-2—AppleWorks Tutorial, 7-9 a.m., $70.

August 3 & 10—Symphony, 9 a.m.-5 p.m., $195.

August 5-9—dBase II (Introduction), 7-9 a.m., $100.

August 12-16—Multiplan, 7-9 a.m., $100.

August 17 & 24—dBase III, 9 a.m.-5 p.m., $195.

August 19-23—WordStar, 8-11 a.m., $150.

August 19-23—dBase II (Introduction), 11:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m., $150.

August 19-23—dBase II (Advanced), 3-6 p.m., $150.

August 19-23—Multiplan, 6-10 p.m., $150.

For further information, call Candeloro at (312) 534-5000, Extension 2436.

Governors State University is on University Parkway (formerly Stuenkel Road) east of Governors Highway in the southern suburb of University Park.

Placement offers workshop

Placement activities for Governors State University students continue throughout the summer trimester.

"Marketing Yourself" is topic for a placement workshop to be held from 1 to 5 p.m. on Aug. 19 and again from 4 to 8 p.m. on Aug. 20. The workshop will cover techniques for resume writing and for interviewing. A video-tape experience will be utilized to illustrate the latter.

College of Education has speakers, consultants for area school districts

Fifteen faculty members in the College of Education (CE) at Governors State University are available as speakers and consultants on various topics related to education.

According to Jean Bernstein, CE lecturer and coordinator for the speakers' project, "division faculty members can provide workshops and consultant services on selected topics to area school districts."

Bernstein is the retired superintendent of schools in Park Forest District 163 and a lecturer on the CE faculty.

"The Division of Education of the Governors State University College of Education has a strong commitment to the larger educational community it serves," she explained.

Twelve university professors are listed on the speakers' roster. They include Dr. Lisa L. Chang who holds the doctorate in mathematics education from Cornell University, Dr. Melvyn Freed who holds the doctorate in higher education administration from Southern Illinois University, Dr. Grace Hopkins who serves as division chair and holds the doctorate in special education and in educational administration from the University of Illinois, and Dr. Jeff Kaiser who holds the doctorate in educational administration from the State University of New York.

Other university professors are Dr. Maribeth Montgomery Kasik who holds the doctor's degree in education with concentration in special education from Southern Illinois University, Dr. Benjamin Lowe who holds the doctorate in physical education with concentration in the social science of sport from the University of Wisconsin, Dr. William P. McLemore who has the doctor's degree in social studies education from Northwestern University, and Dr. George Michel with the doctorate in educational administration from Stanford University.

Also included are Robert Press who has completed all coursework for the doctorate in education from Syracuse University, Dr. Vinicio H. Reyes who has the doctorate in education from Loyola University, Dr. Peggy Williams with the doctorate in teacher education from the University of Chicago, and Dr. Audrey Witzman who has the doctorate from Northwestern University in English education with emphasis in the development of the young child.

In addition to Bernstein, who holds a master of arts degree from the University of Chicago in administration and curriculum development, other faculty lecturers included on the speakers roster are Jean W. Andringa who holds the certificate of advanced study in administration and supervision and in special education from the National College of Education, and Dr. Robert Hess who holds the doctorate in reading education and educational measurement from the University of South Carolina.

Each of the faculty members is available to speak or consult on topics related to their areas of specialization.

In addition, faculty groups have prepared workshop programs in topics such as "Reading/Language Arts," "Mathematics Education," "Special Education," "School Climate/Organization," "Educational Issues and Concerns," and "Early Childhood."

Further information regarding speakers, topics and availability may be obtained by calling the Division of Education at (312) 534-5000, extension 2354.

Strukoff heads music guild for second year

Dr. Rudolf Strukoff, university professor of vocal music at Governors State University, has been re-elected to a second term as president of the Chicago Singing Teachers Guild.

Strukoff declares that one of the major goals of his present administration is to rewrite the constitution of the 40-year-old, all male organization to eliminate sexist language and make membership available to women teachers of singing. "We expect to complete this project by September, when it will be put to a vote of the membership. I am confident that we will have a significant number of female members in the fall," he says.

The Guild is one of the oldest organizations of its kind in the country. Members meet monthly from September through May to discuss theory, technique, methodology and other aspects of voice pedagogy. There are about 30 members from throughout the Chicago area.

Strukoff is founder and director of the Governors State University-Community Chorale and teaches voice at the university. He joined the faculty in 1977 following eight years on the music faculty at Andrews University. He also taught at Indiana State University and in California. He holds the B.S. degree in music from Andrews and the master's and doctor's degrees from Michigan State University.

CAS professor Hagens, spouse, publish grid theory research

An anthropology professor at Governors State University was co-author for a recently published article on planetary grid research.

"The Planetary Grid: A New Synthesis" appeared in Pursuit, the quarterly journal of the Society for the Investigation of the Unexplained. It was written by Dr. Elizabeth Hagens, a member of the faculty at the university's College of Arts and Sciences, and by William Becker, professor of industrial design at the University of Illinois at Chicago.

The two are a husband-wife team that has been conducting planetary grid research for some time. They have developed the "Becker-Hagens Earth Star" as a representation of their conclusions.

Among other things, planetary grid research attempts to chart predictable physical energy patterns which, in part, might provide explanation for previously unexplained happenings. Several grid theories are centuries old.

"All that may be new about our work is that we have simply found a unique blend of the previously 'unblended' ideas of others," the authors say in an introduction to their article. "Those others are true visionaries in the areas of unexplained earth phenomena, human history, discovery, and the art-science of geometry."

"We believe that we have found within the planetary grid system a more detailed framework that will tie together the work of Buckminster Fuller and his mathematician colleagues," Hagens and Becker claim.

In the article, they draw similarities between their use of the hinged alignment of triangles to construct their "Earth Star" model and Fuller's similar use in constructing his geodesic dome.

"We have called it the Unified Vector Geometry (UVG) 120 Sphere," they write. "We consider it the key component in our proposed 'new synthesis' of planetary grid research."

Hagens and Becker have established a solar construction and product design company which produces the "Earth Star" foldable map-sphere.

A member of the Governors State faculty since 1972, Hagens holds the bachelor of arts degree from Occidental College, and both the master of arts and doctor of philosophy degrees from the University of Chicago.

Governors State is site of fall "Festival of the Arts"

A major three-day Festival of the Arts, involving a wide variety of both professional and amateur performing and visual artists, is planned for Sept. 26-28 at Governors State University, according to Dr. Arthur Bourgeois, chair of the Fine and Performing Arts Division of the College of Arts and Sciences.

"This is the first of what we hope will be an annual artistic extravaganza at Governors State," Bourgeois declares. "We believe that one of the most important features of the festival is the opportunity for local groups and individuals to showcase their talents along with artists of national or international reputation," he says. He further notes that it is being presented by the university as a free public service.

Among the groups already showing an interest are the Bloom High School band and the American Dance Center. Farther afield, the Chanute Air Force Jazz Band will appear on the Saturday schedule. A recital is scheduled for Thursday afternoon for individuals or ensembles from the southern suburbs who sing, play, dance or otherwise perform. Interested parties are invited to contact Bourgeois this summer to be considered for this event.

The festival will include professional jazz artists who will conduct daily clinics and present a concert on Saturday evening. Their appearance is being funded in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Arthur Bourgeois

Tours of the internationally acclaimed Nathan Manilow Sculpture Park at GSU are scheduled daily. Arrangements are underway with some of the creators of works in the park to present lectures about this art form. Invitations have been sent to the community colleges in the southern suburbs for an art competition for drawings, paintings, sculptures and printmaking. Prizes will be awarded to the top three entries.

A juried exhibit of "Works on and of Paper" also is planned with an artists' reception on Friday evening. Concurrently, there will be a reception in Infinity Gallery for the visiting exhibit of two outstanding professional photographers.

A unique feature of the festival is the opening on Sept. 27 of the first public showing of ten outdoor sculptures by Jeffrey Rubinoff, of British Columbia, Canada. He will ship ten large steel works to the local campus for a two-month show. The exhibit already has received international attention through an announcement in the prestigious magazine Art in America.

The Governors State University String Quartet also will present a recital on Friday evening. At various times on all three days, both students and faculty in the arts at Governors State will perform or display their talents.

"With this art spectacular, we intend to show the people of Greater Chicago and, indeed, the nation that the arts flourish in the southern suburbs," Bourgeois states.

Persons or groups interested in participating should contact Dr. Arthur Bourgeois, Governors State University, University Park, Illinois 60466, or call (312) 534-5000, extension 2447.

Graduate paper highlights American women composers

Contrary to popular notion, not all "serious" music was composed by men, declares The Rev. Joseph P. Cirou, a Roman Catholic priest who was graduated in June from Governors State University with a master's degree in music.

"Fifteen years ago, if anyone had attempted to research the field of women composers, there would have been very little reference material," Father Cirou says. But since the early 1970s, there has been a growing body of studies, directories, periodical articles and other types of reference works heralding past and current accomplishments of women in music. Now added to this literature is "American Women Composers: A Selected Survey," Father Cirou's graduate project.

It contains information about 159 women who have made significant contributions to American music. "Most of the entries fall into the classical tradition," the author notes.

There are some exceptions to the rule, such as Bessie Smith, known as the "Empress of the Blues," and Mary Lou Williams, called the "First Lady of Jazz." "But I did not include the 'pops' or folk music genres, because I might never have been able to complete it," he says.

All but 20 of the women listed have at least one composition on an audio recording of some kind, although the researcher does not guarantee that such recordings are commercially available today.

The study includes women from only the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. The earliest is Faustina Hasse Hodges, born in 1822 in Bristol, England, and died in 1895 in Philadelphia. The most recent is Sarah W. Aderholt, born in 1955 in North Carolina. Some are foreign-born, prompting Father Cirou to explain that he included anyone who was "born, naturalized, resident or active in United States music for a period of at least ten years." Thus, 24 were born outside the United States, many of whom later made it their homeland. Ten were born in Illinois.

Father Cirou's work also includes an extensive bibliography and discography. "The project was not meant to be 100 percent inclusive," he says. "But it is the only work of which I am aware that includes all of these 159 selected women. Considering that I originally was shooting for 100 entries of significance, I think the study is strong evidence of the influence women have had in what has long been considered man's domain."

Father Cirou is associate pastor of St. Irenaeus Church in Park Forest. In addition to the recently conferred M.A. degree, he also holds bachelor of arts and bachelor of sacred theology degrees and the licentiate in sacred theology.

Ninth annual Outdoor Folkfest features Paxton, Buck's Stove and Range Co.

Three major attractions share top billing for Governors State University's Outdoor Folkfest VIII on August 16 at 7 p.m., according to Tommy Dascenzo, director of student life.

Star attraction for the event is Tom Paxton, internationally popular song writer, performer, and recording artist. Buck's Stove and Range Co., one of the best known bluegrass groups to emerge from the midwest prairies in recent years, shares top billing. Dave Rudolf, well-known entertainer from Park Forest, is featured as master of ceremonies.

Paxton is making his second appearance at the Governors State Folkfest. He was a headliner in 1981. He is a star of international standing. Although he started in show business in New York's Greenwich Village, his career really got rolling in England in the mid-60s. At a rock festival with an audience of some 250,000 on the Isle of Wight in 1969, folksinger Paxton and his acoustic guitar held center stage for more than an hour and stopped the show for 15 minutes as the audience applauded.

Since then, he has been stopping shows in France, Germany, Holland, the Scandinavian countries, Australia, New Zealand, Ireland and Scotland.

Since his initial album, "Ramblin' Boy," in 1964, Paxton has made more than a dozen others, both in America and England. They feature many of his compositions on topics as divergent as social and political issues, children's themes, and love songs. Unlike the output of so many other songwriters in the folk genre, many of his works have been recorded and popularized by other artists, such as Neil Diamond, Glen Campbell, Joan Baez and Dolly Parton.

Paxton has been on several of the most popular TV talk and variety shows and is heard regularly on National Public Radio with his "Paxton Reports."

Both Paxton and Buck's Stove & Range Co. were featured on July 2 at the WFMT/City of Chicago Folk Festival.

Buck's also is a repeater at GSU, having appeared as a featured entertainment early in the '80s. Since then, the band has moved up on the folk charts and appeared at such popular events as Chicagofest, Milwaukee Summerfest, Wisconsin State Fair, Philadelphia Folk Festival, Great Northern Bluegrass Festival in Mole Lake, Wis., and the Walnut Valley National Flat-picking Contest in Winfield, Kan. They also have been at the Boggy Creek Mountain Music Festival in Manitoba, Canada.

Now in its tenth year, the group got its start in Indiana under the leadership of banjo player Roger Banister. His wife, Denise, plays electric bass and is lead vocalist. Brad Hevron is on the acoustic guitar and vocals, and Charlie Brown is on mandolin and fiddle. Buck's is a regular performer on "The Flea Market," a show broadcast over Chicago's WBEZ radio and sent by satellite to several other PBS stations across the nation.

In addition, the Defense Department sponsored Buck's on a 49 day, 42 show tour of West Germany and the middle east in 1983. The band has several recordings and a national cable network show to its credit. This past spring, it was heard live in remote broadcasts over Chicago's WGN radio station.

Tom Paxton

Rudolf is no stranger to Governors State University audiences. He has been emcee of previous Outdoor Folkfests and other entertainments at the university. He is a regular at Someplace Else in Park Forest and such Chicago talent showcases as Orphans, Somebody Else's Troubles and Who's On First Comedy Club. He has produced about half a dozen records of his own material as well as albums for other entertainers. According to "Newsweek," he is one of the most frequently recommended acts on the college circuit. One of his most recent projects is a children's album called "Explorer Train," released this summer.

Outdoor Folkfest VIII will be held in the outdoor Amphitheatre at Governors State. An extra feature is a fireworks display at the end of the musical portion of the program. In the event of bad weather, the program will be held indoors.

Dascenzo states that this is family entertainment and encourages those who wish to bring picnic supper to eat on the spacious lawn by the lake.

Tickets are available in advance at the university cashier's office at $4 for general public, $3 for GSU employees and alumni and senior citizens, and $2 for children under 12. Add $1 for tickets purchased at the box office on the evening of the performance. Governors State University students are admitted free.

University to take part in educational pilot project

Governors State University is one of approximately 100 institutions nationwide recently selected to participate in a joint educational venture of the United Auto Workers (UAW) and the Ford Motor Co.

The pilot project will be known as the College and University Option Program (CUOP).

As a new program of the UAW-Ford National Training and Development Center (NTDC), it "encourages colleges and universities to offer fair and flexible educational opportunities for the UAW-represented Ford Motor Co. employees," according to Diana Bamford-Rees of the Council for the Advancement of Experiential Learning (CAEL).

Bamford-Rees, who serves as CUOP training director, said the pilot program is being undertaken in Chicago, Detroit, Indianapolis, Kansas City, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo and St. Louis.

Governors State will participate in a regional network of schools in providing both degree and non-degree continuing education for UAW-Ford "active hourly employees" in the Chicago region, according to a CAEL statement.

CAEL "is a partner in the design, development and orchestration of the NDTC College and University Options Program," the statement explains.

The CUOP project is designed to bring a variety of counseling, assessment and instructional services to the workplace and will reach beyond the prepaid tuition benefit already available to UAW employees of Ford.

The CAEL statement explains that CUOP intends to address individual concerns of adult workers who are considering a return to school. "The program is also designed to increase accessibility to learning services to all UAW-Ford active hourly employees," it continues. "The adult learner will have expanded opportunities and incentives to access higher education, training and support services while continuing to work."

The project is expected to begin in fall 1985. According to CAEL reports, it will be expanded to a nationwide service if the pilot is successful.

CHP student receives award

A graduate student in communication disorders at Governors State University was the recent recipient of a $1,000 scholarship from the Chicago Speech and Hearing Association.

Maria Cebrian-Sanchez has been named as 1985 recipient of the award.

"The award is based on academic performance, financial need, support of faculty, and the candidate's own statement of career goals," according to Dr. Jay Lubinsky, chair for the Division of Communication Disorders in the university's College of Health Professions.

The university offers both undergraduate and graduate programs in communications disorders. The undergraduate major offers preprofessional education in speech-language pathology and related areas, while the graduate major prepares students to work as professional speech-language pathologists.

Information regarding the communications disorders program at Governors State University may be obtained by contacting Dr. Lubinsky at (312) 534-5000, extension 2370.

Students can still register for fall courses

Registration timelines for the fall 1985 trimester have been announced at Governors State University.

Courses are offered on a three-block basis during the trimester. Block 1 courses run from Sept. 3 through Dec. 14, Block 2 from Sept. 3 through Oct. 23, and Block 3 from Oct. 24 through Dec. 14. An open registration period will be held on Aug. 27 and 28.

Late registrations will be accepted from Sept. 3 through Sept. 12 for Block 1, from Sept. 3 through Sept. 9 for Block 2, and from Oct. 24 to Oct. 30 for Block 3.

Current enrollment, continuing student status, or admission is required for registration at either period.

Persons who did not, or who were not eligible to, register at advance registration may do so at either the open registration period or during late registration.

Students also may add or drop courses during the late registration period.

Further information regarding admission to Governors State University may be obtained by contacting the Office of Admissions and Student Recruitment at (312) 534-5000, extension 2518.

Governors State business ed courses set for DuPage

Two Governors State University business courses will be offered on the College of DuPage campus in Glen Ellyn during the fall 1985 trimester.

According to Dr. Richard Finkley, assistant dean of the university's College of Business and Public Administration (CBPA), three other courses will be offered during the winter 1986 trimester.

Dr. Finkley said the courses to be offered during the fall session are "Organizational Behavior" which will meet on Wednesdays, and "Consumer Behavior" which will meet on Thursdays.

Both are offered for undergraduate credit only.

Fall trimester courses run from September through December, and winter courses run from January through April.

Dr. Finkley said a university academic advisor will be available at the College of DuPage on alternating Wednesday evenings.

Appointments to meet with the academic advisor may be made by contacting Judy Gustawson of the CBPA staff at (312) 534-5000, extension 2241.

Registration information regarding off-campus courses offered by Governors State University may be obtained by contacting Grace LeFebvre of the Office of Special Programs and Continuing Education at (312) 534-5000, extension 2125.

Education courses are offered in Joliet

The College of Education at Governors State University will offer several undergraduate elementary education courses in Joliet during the fall and winter trimesters.

Classes will be held at the Joliet West High School facilities.

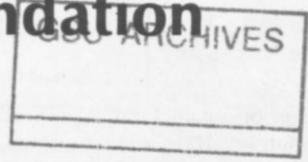

Persons desiring further details regarding the courses may meet with a university counselor in the Joliet area on Aug. 7.

An academic advisor will be available at the Joliet Junior College campus from 4 to 8 p.m. on this date.

Appointments with an advisor may be made by contacting Jean Johnson at the College of Education, (312) 534-5000, extension 2241.

Information regarding courses to be offered and registration details may be obtained by contacting Grace LeFebvre of the university's Office of Special Programs and Continuing Education at (312) 534-5000, extension 2125.

Governors State University Foundation donations announced.

Gifts to the Governors State University Foundation totaled $48,284 during a five-month period.

According to William H. Dodd, executive director of institutional advancement for the university and chief executive officer for the Foundation, $8,000 was received in unrestricted donations.

With unrestricted gifts, the donor does not specify the specific use for the money, Dodd said. In these cases, he explained, the Foundation's Board of Directors determines use for the funds.

Unrestricted gifts received during the period were $5,000 from the Matteson-Richton Bank, $1,000 from Century Steel Corp., $1,000 from Pasquinelli Construction Co., and $1,000 from Peter Levin Pontiac/BMW.

In the restricted category, the Foundation received $7,000 in proceeds from the Annual President's Concert of the Governors State University String Quartet. The monies will be used for the Community College Scholarship Fund, Dodd said.

Additional restricted gifts included $1,000 from Michael Foley, director of physical plant operations at the university, toward the costs of installing a carillon on campus, and $2,500 from the United Video Corp. toward construction of a comprehensive teleport on campus.

Dodd said three major gifts of objects also were made to the Foundation during the same period.

Peter Fenner, former professor, donated books and journals with a value of $8,551; David and Reva Logan of Chicago donated photographs and books on photography valued at $12,000; and Harrison Eiteljorg of Indianapolis donated two pieces of African art valued at $900.

"It is this type of support from our many good friends in the region which provides for so many 'extras' at Governors State," Dodd said. "All the directors of the Foundation, and—I am sure—all the staff and students at the university, feel a great debt of gratitude toward these generous friends."

Cochrane is new director of SBDC

Christine Cochrane, Crete, has been appointed director of the Small Business Development Center (SBDC) headquartered in the College of Business and Public Administration of Governors State University.

Cochrane has been at Governors State since 1980 as a continuing education community coordinator in special programs and continuing education. She was assigned to the SBDC in September, 1984 to assist in coordinating the many workshops and seminars sponsored by that office.

The Small Business Development Center is a consortium of Governors State, Kankakee Community College, Moraine Valley Community College, Thornton Community College, and Prairie State College. It is one of several throughout the state. "Our SBDC is one of the best in the state and we are proud of it. This past year was one of organizing the office, negotiating several contracts with the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs and welcoming the public. We would like to keep growing, of course," the new director says.

Cochrane earned the bachelor of arts degree from University of Wisconsin at Madison and the master of arts degree in business administration from Governors State.

Cochrane succeeds Carl Ziemann, who has returned to the faculty as a lecturer in business.

Governors State University staff members publish book

Melvyn Freed

Three Governors State University staff members will be involved in the publication of a new administrative textbook.

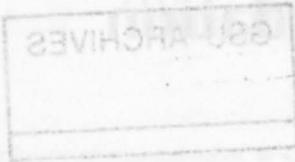

Dr. Melvyn M. Freed, professor of educational administration in the university's College of Education (CE) will serve as senior author and editor for The Source Book of Educational Research and Information to be published by the Macmillan Publishing Co.

"They have decided it should become one of the few basic reference books for the field of education," Dr. Freed said. "Consequently, they plan to republish it every three years."

Assisting Dr. Freed in the publishing effort will be Dr. Robert K. Hess III, a lecturer in the CE, and Dr. Carl Peterson, subject specialist and reference librarian at the University Library. Also assisting will be Dr. Krishna Balasubramonian, a former CE professor.

Dr. Freed said the American Council on Education has selected the text to be included in its series of leadership books in higher education.
