APRC 2/13/20

Attendees: Amy Vujaklija, Li-Wei Peng, Shirley Spencer, Bill Kresse, Joong Won, Michel Nguessan, John Simon, Carlos Ferran

Review for Anthropology and Sociology program Annual Listing

Concerns:

Identify required number of courses, selectives, for sociology and for anthropology.

With transfer credits from another university - what will be accepted?

Missing objectives and assessments

Email was sent to originator Christine Sintic and Chair Jason Zingshiem for clarification and more information.

Economics, B.A. review - approved with the following feedback.

APRC recognizes the importance of the Economics program across the university. It is worthwhile to note that economics courses support multiple university programs. The committee approves the program with the following recommendations: Develop and implement plans for enrollment growth. Clarify that students must have the requisite knowledge of college algebra for the required statistics and applied calculus. For the Narrative Part III (capstone), add a sentence such as the following: Rubrics for written and oral assignments are produced by the faculty in accordance with guidelines established by AACSB business accrediting body. Demonstrate the connection to objectives, e.g. technology to support business communication or critical thinking in business contexts. Clarify that writing and other rubrics are at the mastery level in the capstone course and that they are introduced in earlier sequences.
