BOG MEETS ON MASTER PLAN IV...Northern Ill. Univ. in DeKalb will be the location for the next BOG meeting of Board members, Executive Officer and University Presidents on Friday, Oct. 24. A special open meeting to vote on purchases is scheduled for 9 a.m., with the balance of the day spent on a discussion of the BHE Master Plan IV (see recap below). The BOG Retreat originally set for Oct. 23-25 has been delayed - new date yet to be announced.

RECAP - MASTER PLAN IV...At its Sept. meeting, the BHE discussed major issues and recommendations resulting from studies on revision of the existing III. master plan for higher ed. The reports project the following context for III. postsecondary ed.:

- generally stabilized enrollments,
- the need for a complementary and differentiated system of mission and scope designations for public institutions,
- the need for institutions to generally increase productivity if resource needs are to be met,
- selected new programmatic thrusts coupled with increased rigor in the review of new and existing programs,
- a capital improvement program that emphasizes remodeling and new construction directly related to enrollment increases.

Dr. Furman's report on this study identified the following specific aspects:

(1) a need for "differentiated and complementary system of public higher education--differentiated in the sense that the mission of institutions is based on historical development, that there are different educational needs of localities and regions, and that there be an attempt not to excessively and unnecessarily duplicate programs and services among institutions; complementary in the sense that the system as a whole responds to all the educational needs of all the citizens of the state."

- (2) future program priorities: health occupations education, environment/energy, certain aspects of legal education, and some areas of teacher education.
- (3) recommended: it was also recommended that undergraduate student tuition at public universities be increased to one-third of instructional costs by 1980, and that graduate student tuition be one-third higher than undergraduate rates, and
- (4) Increase in student financial aid to offset any effects of tuition increases at public universities.

THE MANY DRAMAS AT GSU

"FRINGE" FIRST...play of the 1975-76 season at GSU is "Beyond the Fringe," directed by David Reeve (CCS). The play is being presented Oct. 16-19, 8 p.m., in the theater.

"Beyond the Fringe," written and acted by Alan Bennett, Jonathan Miller, Peter Cook, and Dudley Moore in London, was brought to the U.S. in 1962. The British satire, done in a series of mad-cap scenes and black-outs, comments on everything from politics and nuclear war to religion and Shakespeare.

The cast includes Wayne Orr, Steger; Dennis Lonstein, Hazel Crest; Gordon Richards, Mokena; and John Szostek, Flossmoor.

Season tickets for the five-play series are $8 for adults, $5.50 for students and senior citizens; singles are $2 and $1.50.

"THE INCREDIBLE JUNGLE JOURNEY OF FENDA MARIA"... based on African folklore, is the touring play presented by the GSU children's theater. With colorful costumes and settings designed by the GSU staff, the troupe will use rhythms, song and creative dramatic techniques to create a novel experience for their young audiences.

Written by Jack Stokes, the children's play has a cast of 12: Chicago--Donald Crayton, Ollice G. Pitts, Nancy Caldwell, Luc Morales, and Chris Aogle; Harvey--Marilee Treadwell; Homewood--Paul Parker; Park Forest--Kristin Becker, Joan C. Traybsza, Edie Goodman, and Sandra McIntyre; Steger--Wayne Orr.

Schools and organizations are invited to book the production by contacting the director, Temmie Gilbert at x2119.

CREATIVE DRAMATICS...for young people (grades 1-9) will again be offered, beginning Nov. 8, by CCS. Weekly Sat. meetings, under the direction of GSU students and staff, will explore theater games, exercises, and improvisational techniques, combined with a mini-theater workshop. Activities, geared to the needs of each particular age group, will include skills in make-up, costuming, sound production, pantomime, and characterization. The Saturday sessions will culminate in informal studio presentations. The free program is offered as a community service, with places filled on a "first-come, first-served" basis for the limited enrollment. Interested parents or students may call x2119 for further info.

ASSESSMENT WORKSHOP...A faculty development workshop on assessment of experiential learning is slated for October 20, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., at Tolentine center, led by GSU Director of Assessment, Betty Stanley. Methods of assessment of prior experiential learning using a case study method, including the assessment of actual student portfolios, with comparisons and discussions of recommendations, will be used to encourage involvement by participating staff members.

Techniques discussed will include standardized examinations, presentation of portfolios, product assessment, and work sample assessment. Information on the activities of other institutions will be presented.

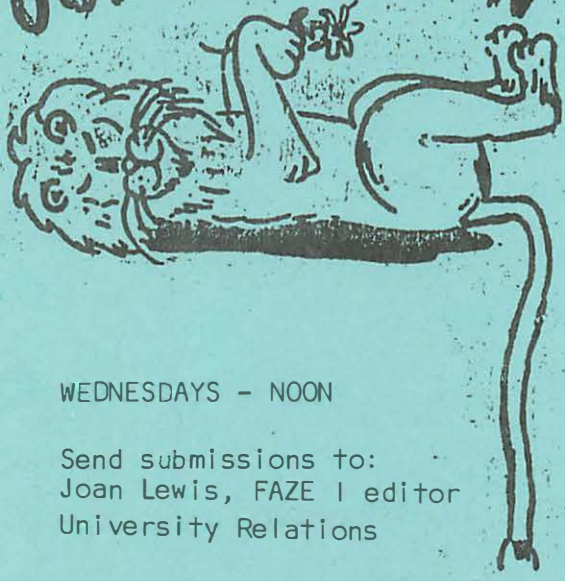

Cooperative Assessment of Experiential Learning of Princeton, N.J., has selected GSU as a field research site for the validation of assessment materials and for the faculty development program, with workshops designed to provide consistent and continuous training and development.

"ACCEPTING CHANGE"...Titles the one-day workshop offered by the Arica Institute of Chicago on Sunday, October 19, in the multi-media dome. Training systems in conscious human evolution consisting of "simple techniques in meditation, breathing, song and dance, games, conversations about our lives, and the catharsis of the acceptance of change" are offered. The fee for the program, "Open Path 1: Accepting Change," will be $25, with partial scholarships available. For further info, call Sebastian Palmgiani, x2444, or 782-0934.
