$31,000 GRANT AWARDED...The Illinois Institute for Environmental Quality (IIEQ) has awarded $31,000 to the Environmental Management program at GSU for a second phase to further develop guidelines for the estimation of the benefits of pollution control. A first phase grant from the IIEQ allowed development of an identification procedure to help determine what benefit parameters need to be considered as new and revised regulations are assessed for their economic impact. Three EAS professors, Herman Sievering, Howard Roberts and Brenda Forster are leading the new project, entitled "Guidelines for Benefit Estimation in Economic Impact Studies." The project work will focus on methods for identifying and measuring potential benefits to society deriving from regulated pollution control. Several graduate students will assist the faculty directors--Steve Harrison, Bobbie Lively, Mitchell Isoe, Rosalyn Sheff, and Ethel Cash.

POST SCRIPT TO RESCUE...Dr. G. Edward Stormer (HLD) will receive a Search and Rescue Find Award for his alert performance in spotting the wreckage of an aircraft which crashed north of Manteno, Illinois on Sunday, Oct. 3, 1976. Stormer is a member of the Civil Air Patrol Search and Rescue Squadron that operates out of Haedtler Field, Park Forest. Dr. Stormer's flight career began with the glider training program offered at GSU approximately one year ago. After completion of the basic course, Dr. Stormer went on sabbatical leave during which time he acquired a pilot's license; and, upon his return joined the Park Forest Civil Air Patrol Squadron and purchased an aircraft.

ALUMNI NEWS - SECOND ISSUE...The GSU Alumni Association has published its second "GSU Alumni News." Dr. Leo Goodman-Malamuth II writes in "A Note From The President," "It is my conviction that there is no substitute in higher education for academic quality. Thus throughout the coming years one theme will guide the decision-making and operation of Governors State: excellence." Other articles in the issue include a focus on activities of several alumnae and highlights of recent events at GSU such as the Community Picnic and the sculpture exhibit. Copies are now being mailed to the alumnae.

FAZE FOCUS: CELIA-ANN TOLL

Celia-Ann Toll, a veteran GSUer, will celebrate her sixth anniversary with the University in December.

As an Admissions & Records Officer she is one of the first people potential students may see as they seek admittance to the University. It is her job to guide them through the steps of admission.

Helping people comes easily to Celia Toll, who has prepared herself well in order to help students meet their educational goals.

Prior to joining GSU she was employed for a number of years at the Family Service and Mental Health Center of South Cook County as a secretary. Widowed in 1969, Celia felt that it was time to set long-term career goals for herself.

She was drawn to the newly-opened GSU by the challenge of a "different kind" of University and because she saw a great potential for personal growth in an educational atmosphere.

While serving as secretary to the Director of Admissions, Celia quickly took advantage of the opportunity to complete her educational goals and became the first student admitted to the BOG degree program here. She received her B.A. in April, 1974. She continued her education and received a masters degree in Human Relations Services from HLD in December, 1975.

"I hope always to be involved with people," Celia said, "there is something to be learned from every personal encounter."

"In dealing with people of varied backgrounds and cultures my own experience is expanded as I learn about educational processes across the country...and internationally too."

Looking back over her experiences, Celia said, "I really believe in the mission of this University and that quality education is possible with a competency-based program. I am basically an optimistic person and I would hope that things I have seen as problem areas will be reviewed and resolved in a very positive way by the new administration."

Celia is involved in several areas of GSU life. As Admissions & Records Officer she functions also as Foreign Student Admissions Officer, is a member of the University Assembly, Vice-Chairperson of the Human Services Committee, and Chairperson of the Civil Services Affairs Subcommittee.

She resides in Park Forest with her daughter Pam, who is a student at GSU. She also has a son Eric, who lives in Oregon and another daughter, Cindy, who lives in California.
