PLEASE NOTE . . .

The proposed Constitution and By-Laws distributed in Faze I, June 30 was incomplete. The omitted sections have been sent to all GSU faculty and staff. If you have not received your copy, contact the University Assembly Office, x2121.

BOG NOTES . . .

A recent action of the Board of Governors unanimously recommended the BOG Degree Program to the Board of Higher Education for continuation. A recently completed five year review has indicated that this has become an important program meeting a substantial need for the citizens of Illinois. In its five year existence, over 6,000 students have been enrolled and over 1,600 have graduated.

Dr. James T. Brown, Deputy Executive Director for Fiscal Affairs and Treasurer of the BOG has resigned that position as of July 31, 1978. He has accepted the position of Chancellor of Daniel Hale Williams University in Chicago.

SUMMER THEATRE . . .

"The Beauty of the Dreaming Wood," the summer production of the GSU Theatre will be presented July 22, 23, 29 and 30. Based on the "Sleeping Beauty" legend the play is a contemporary story of modern parents and the conflict between the "good" and "evil" fairies, bridging the folk wisdom of the early story with the feeling and thought of contemporary life.

Saturday performances will be at 2:30 p.m. and the Sunday presentations at 7:00 p.m.

Ticket reservations may be made by telephoning 534-5000, x2119.

REMINDER . . .

Pres. Leo Goodman-Malamuth will have Coffee and Conversation with GSU students July 13, 3:00 - 5:00 p.m. in the Hall of Governors.

Editorial: Quality and the GSU Image

Reprinted from GSU Alumni News,
June, 1978.

Harvard we're not. Ivy covered walls and Corten steel will never be compatible components of the GSU image. But excellence. . . In our academic programs, our research, our cultural activities, and ultimately in the graduates of this brave new institution is an original and continuing goal of GSU.

As with any university, our image is a complex pattern formed by what people say and do about their encounter with GSU, with its accomplishments and failures. Over the nine years of our existence, we can boast quite an array of conspicuous triumphs. . . accreditation, dedication, record enrollments, distinguished awards in recognition of an equally distinguished faculty and the scholars they have produced.

Realistically, the failures have also claimed attention. . . disgruntled students tangled in "Catch 22" procedures, rumors that GSU is a "degree mill," dipping enrollments, rising tuition costs, etc. The situation evoked great concern for the future among University staff, students, and alumni.

This past year has been a time of reassessment. Leo Goodman-Malamuth as incoming and second president set the tone in 1976 with his pledge to excellence, a pledge that is now being carried out in the classrooms and administrative offices. The improvements are a reality. Standards have been tightened on completion of course work with a new "Academic Good Standing Policy" and tougher graduation requirements, procedural kinks in registration ironed out, classroom contact hours increased. GSU is demanding more of itself and its students these days. And as with negative rumors, the sense of pride engendered by these efforts is infectious. We're proving that innovation need not be synonymous with mediocrity, or "easy degrees," a by-product of non-traditional teaching.

For alumni, this renewed direction holds both great significance and opportunity. GSU's image of excellence can be testimony to the worth of each degree earned at this institution; our academic credentials only demand as much respect as this University itself commands. As graduates we can have great impact on that image through our positive support of the University's efforts, whether that support be financial, or contributions of time, or simply a positive comment made at the right time and place.

Public image, like the original dream that inspired the founding of Governors State University, is a living, malleable entity—to be shaped by and to the needs of the people it serves. With your help, both are alive and well and flourishing in Park Forest South, IL. ■
