The greatest challenges facing both the arts and education are how to navigate the perilous course between adventure and discipline; how to respond to tradition without either rejecting it or becoming its slave.

Faculty and Staff Meet to Begin New Academic Year

Opening the new academic year, about 160 members of Governors State University's faculty and professional staff met Wednesday, September 5, in Engbretson Hall where the discussion ranged from the first 10 years at GSU to the next 10 years. In his address to the convocation, President Goodman-Malamuth remarked that since its beginning in 1969, the University has "responded with courage, creativity, and a sense of commitment to the call of society to open a university for those citizens who were excluded by reason of race, creed, or capital." He continued, "During the first decade, we earned a reputation for openness, innovation, service, scholarship, creativity, and a willingness to serve the communities surrounding the University."

Looking at GSU's future, the President pointed out that the administrative wing will continue to upgrade facilities, improve the appearance of the campus, work on improving the service of the bookstore and cafeteria, and work on the improvement of the classrooms and faculty offices. He continued, "We will continue to work to strengthen, enhance, and improve our academic programs and academic support services and work diligently on recruitment, retention, and articulation in the community colleges."

"This coming year, under the leadership of the Provost, and the appropriate faculty body, a serious review of the curriculum will be carried out. This, coupled with the addition of grading to complement our competency-based educational design, will bring excellence into sharper focus for all--students, faculty, administration, staff and community," the President stated.

During the meeting, the President presented distinguished service resolutions honoring Dr. Ted Andrews, former Dean of the College of Environmental and Applied Sciences, and Dr. Alfonso Sherman, former Dean of the College of Cultural Studies. The two Colleges have been merged to form the new College of Arts and Sciences. Dr. Goodman-Malamuth also honored Dr. Ruben Austin, University Professor of the College of Business and Public Service, who is retiring from the University faculty.

Following the President's address and an introduction of new faculty and professional staff, a panel discussion focused on "How to Maintain Academic Standards Under Conditions of the 1980's." Panel participants were: Dr. Jim Buckenmyer, Acting Associate Dean of BPA; Dr. Bethe Hagens, University Professor, A&S; and Dr. Helen Hughes, University Professor, HLD.

Provost Curtis McCray and University Assembly Chairperson Aida Shekib were also featured speakers on the program. The President closed the convocation. Saying he looks toward the future with confidence and enthusiasm, Dr. Goodman-Malamuth remarked, "Our first ten years have been good years. Our next ten will be even better."

WITH THE SNIP . . . of a pair of "kiddie" scissors, President Goodman-Malamuth opened GSU's new Child Care Center last week, with the assistance of Bonnie Winkofsky (left), child development Supervisor and Betty McDonald, chairperson of the child care advisory board. The Center cares for 2-12 year-old children of students, faculty and staff of GSU.

NEW I.D. CARDS . . . Faculty and staff should visit the Student Activities Office September 11-14, Tuesday-Friday, between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m., for new identification cards. Under a new I.D. system, faculty and staff will be issued color-coded cards which will not need to be updated during the period of employment.

SPECIAL SCHOLARSHIP . . . Oct. 1 is the deadline for applications for a special $650 a year scholarship at GSU sponsored by the American Logistics Association. To be eligible, an applicant must be a member of a household within a 50-mile radius of Chicago; a veteran with an honorable discharge or a federal civil service employee or a dependent of such persons; and demonstrate an intent to utilize his/her skills in the practice or promotion of such logistical fields as business administration, accounting, procurement, distribution, agricultural sciences or similar disciplines. Application blanks may be obtained from the Office of Financial Aid.

REPORT AVAILABLE . . . Dr. Tom Deem, Project Director for the 1979 Higher Education Cooperative Act Project entitled "Planning of Cooperative Programs Between Governors State University and Six Community Colleges," advised that the Final Evaluation Report has been prepared and submitted to the Illinois Board of Higher Education. The report, covering related associate degree and bachelor degree programs, shows: (1) those programs that have been developed cooperatively (59 business and 6 psychology); (2) GSU separately developed capstone programs (10 in art, music, photography); (3) proposed Health Service Professions capstone programs (over 100); and (4) separately developed capstone programs in process (25). Copies of the report have been distributed to GSU College Deans and members of the Planning and Steering Committee for the project. Staff members who are interested in reviewing the report may borrow a copy from the office of their College Dean, the Office of Community College Relations or the LRC.
