* You must complete the Journal to pass the course.

Papers: Journal and Team Development Paper. See Appendix B and C in text (Lau and Shani).

The Journal should be kept in a 3 ring binder and can be handwritten, typed or word processed. The journal may be inspected by the instructor at several different times during the semester.

The Team Development paper must be typed or word processed and double spaced with a 1" margin.
The journal will serve two separate functions. It should include reflections on the development of the group. This will help in writing the team development paper. Also it should include thoughts on the articles assigned in the reader. This will be used for discussion once a month.

General Education Issues:

Writing and critical thinking skills are incorporated into this class through extensive case analysis discussions and writing assignments.

Syllabus Statement for Persons with Disabilities:

It is the intention of the institution to support full participation of all students, regardless of physical ability level. Therefore, if any student needs consideration of his/her physical abilities in order to complete the course, please notify the instructor as soon as possible.

Grading Criteria for Team Development Paper Assignment

This term paper is a vehicle in which you look over the entire semester to analyze your own class group as a "live case." It is expected that you will be observant about what happened in the group and what emerged as group characteristics. You should be analytical in explaining what happened and why the emergent system developed as it did; with what consequences for individual and group productivity, satisfaction and learning. And finally you are to demonstrate your grasp of the conceptual material presented in the text and developed in class by using the concepts to guide and illuminate your analysis.

Grading criteria:

1. Scope (thoroughness)
   a. Does the paper discuss a number of dimensions (norms, roles, cohesiveness, subgrouping etc.) rather than just a few?
   b. Does the paper consider the impact of a number of events occurring throughout the semester, in contrast to only a few events occurring at the beginning?
   c. Do you include your own behavior, and discuss more than just one or two characteristics of your own personal system?

2. Richness of observation
   Does your paper describe, or the analysis build upon, events that indicate that you were attentive to what was happening between and within members? Do you see emergent events (i.e. a flushed face) as well as required events?

3. Analysis
   a. Do you analyze the causes for emergent group characteristics rather than merely describe what they are?
   b. Do you seek multiple causes rather than single causes for an event or a characteristic?
   c. Do you discuss the consequences of events and emergent characteristics for group and individual productivity, satisfaction and learning?
   d. Is your analysis insightful, identifying less obvious and more subtle causes and consequences?

4. Conceptual understanding
   a. Do you utilize concepts from the text in explaining events, emergent characteristics and consequences?
   b. Does the paper in other ways demonstrate that you have a grasp of the conceptual material (e.g. proper labeling of events)?
5. Flow
   Do you examine the evolution of your group through time rather than in purely static terms?

6. Writing
   a. Is the paper adequately written? Is there clarity, coherence, style, grace.
   b. Is the paper adequately proofread so that there are no spelling or grammatical errors?
   c. Do you deal with the topics in an organized fashion?

7. Personal learning
   Does the paper indicate that you have increased your self-awareness, and enhanced your competency to function effectively in a group?
