First Midwest Bank Invests in New South Suburban Audiences for the Arts

University Park, IL- For the fifth straight year, First Midwest Bank is supporting the work of Governors State University's Center for Performing Arts. The regional bank is no stranger to bringing the community together around arts-related and other community events, and has been doing so for years all over the Midwest, including its commitment to Governors State University since 2008. Now the bank will help build new audiences for the arts in Chicago's Southland by supporting the Center's "Made in Chicago" Series, which brings Chicago-based theatre, dance, and musical ensemble companies to the Southland through collaboration with diverse arts organizations.

First Midwest Bank is deeply rooted in the communities it serves, supporting organizations and events that expand access to services for families and enhance quality of life. Some of these organizations include The Tinley Park Park District, The South Suburban Special Recreation Association, and local school districts, hospitals, and libraries.

GSU President Dr. Elaine P. Maimon is pleased that First Midwest is supplementing five years of funding from The Chicago Community Trust, "I am delighted that First Midwest Bank is joining The Chicago Community Trust in sponsoring "Made in Chicago." This program supports Chicago artists, encourages first-time theater attendance, and develops new audiences for Chicagoland's lively cultural scene."

"Made in Chicago" performances are priced at affordable rates ranging from $28-38, with discounts available for seniors, students and groups of ten or more. Upcoming Made in Chicago performances include:

Ain't Misbehavin' by Porchlight Music Theatre on Saturday, January 30 at 8 p.m. pays tribute to the Harlem Renaissance and the music of Fats Waller in a rowdy and humorous production that won the 2014 Joseph Jefferson Award for "Best Production – Revue."
