GSU STUDENTS TO PARTICIPATE IN NATIONAL ROUND TABLE...Six GSU students will take the opinions of the GSU student body to Capitol Hill when they participate in two student forums and lobby Congress for continued higher education funding. The National Student Round Table will lead a discussion of student issues and organize a Congressional Lobby Day during its seminar March 6 through 10. The United States Student Association will conduct its national student conference in Washington March 13 through 16 and also lobby Congress.

Students who will attend the National Student Round Table seminar in Bethesda, Md., are Carolyn Lueders (CAS), Student Senate public relations officer; Gary Millsap (CAS), a member of the Student Senate and associate editor of the INNOVATOR and Hasan Akhtar (CBPA), a member of the Student Senate.

Students who will attend the USSA Annual Conference in Washington are Edwyn Carter (CAS), vice president of the Student Senate; Theresa Alexander (CAS), and Bill Lawless (CAS), both members of the Student Senate.

1987 ALUMNI PHONATHON BEGINS...The GSU Alumni Association has kicked off its 1987 fundraising effort with their yearly Phonathon, running fifteen nights from March 9 through March 27. The 1987 fund goal is $50,000, which will be used to fund the Alumni Academic Award Program, the Don Hansen Endowed Scholarship and the GSU Library. The 1986 fund drive helped purchase an up-link antenna that allows GSU to send telecasts from its campus to sites across the country and the world.

"In this time of fiscal constraints, state dollars are simply not available to support these endeavors. Your contribution to one of these projects can help make the difference for GSU," Mary Bulliner, vice president of the 1987 Annual Fund, said.

This year civil service employees are encouraged to participate, with ten dollars awarded to the Civil Service Scholarship fund for each civil service employee who volunteers to work the Phonathon.

For further information, contact Ginni Burghardt at the alumni office, (312) 534-5000, extension 2215.

COCHRANE--SBDC "TRAFFIC COP"...Christine Cochrane has many bosses--the Small Business Administration, the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, Governors State University, and most of all the business community.

As director of the Small Business Development Center housed in CBPA, Chris is a one-person management team that helps all concerned develop business and new projects in the south metropolitan Chicago area.

Christine Cochrane

"I often look at my position as that of a traffic cop who can get businesses the right sources--state, federal or local--for their projects. Business may shy away from directly dealing with government funding, but the Small Business Development Center can cut the red tape for them," she said.

"This is a real hybrid program because I'm dealing with so many different agencies, but it does give me the chance to move in and out of communities and business circles that someone from a government agency may not be able to do as easily," Chris explained.

Originally from Wisconsin, Chris started in the business world by holding management positions at department stores after earning her bachelor's degree from the University of Wisconsin. She enrolled at GSU for her master's degree in business administration and completed it in 1975. Chris taught marketing and merchandising at Thornton Community and Prairie State Colleges from 1975 to 1980 before returning to GSU to work.

Three years ago, the Small Business Development Center was organized under the direction of Carl Ziemann. Chris became his assistant. When Ziemann went back to his GSU faculty position in 1985, Chris was appointed director of SBDC. "This office is here at GSU, but it isn't funded by GSU. It's a grant-operation getting its funding from various agencies," she explained.

After much hard work, several of Chris' long-range projects are being funded, including the hiring of two consultants who will do full-service counseling for the business community. That will include everything from working through an SBA application to preparing financial projections.

She's also excited by the upcoming openings of two south suburban incubators-- start up facilities that provide space for a variety of businesses under one roof. "It's an exciting time right now because we have so many of our ideas coming to fruition," Chris said.
