MASSURA TRAVELS EXTENSIVELY . . . Eileen Massura (CHP) is a nursing professor who can share several sides of the profession with her students. She started in the field as an operating room nurse, but decided after several years to return to school to complete a bachelor's degree. With that, Massura moved into the administrative side of nursing, which she enjoyed for a time, but returned to school again to complete a master's degree in psychiatric nursing.

She then went into the classroom, teaching at several institutions before joining the GSU staff in September 1981. Since then, Massura has also completed a certificate in family therapy from the Center for Family Study at Northwestern University and has established a private practice in Oak Lawn in family therapy.

"The thing about nursing is that if you get tired of one avenue, you can always go back to school and find another avenue," she said. "Most of our nursing students are coming back. More and more, health care professionals are realizing there's more to nursing. There's a tremendous theoretical base. It's no longer just bedside nursing."

Massura said the professors at GSU are taking a holistic point of view in educating nursing students. One of the classes she teaches is episodic nursing which helps students understand their relations to patients with life-threatening or long-term illnesses and how the patient and family deal with those illnesses.

Besides her private practice and her work at Governors State, Massura is serving on the state board for the psychiatric division of the American Nursing Review. As a result, she travels extensively. In October she will lead a group of health care professionals on a tour of medical facilities in Japan, Bangkok, Hong Kong, and Singapore for insights into health care in other parts of the world.

NOTES

NOTES FROM JULY 1987 BOARD MEETING

Board Approves Oral English Proficiency Program - To comply with Illinois statute, the Board approved a resolution adopting an Oral English Proficiency Program. "While oral English proficiency hasn't been a problem in the Board of Governors System," Chancellor Layzell said, "this policy formalizes procedures which exist on our campuses now." As part of the search procedure for incoming faculty, the oral English proficiency of each applicant will be evaluated. Each member of the teaching faculty, including those with temporary and part-time appointments, will have her/his teaching effectiveness, including oral English proficiency, evaluated by the department chair at least once annually. Additionally, at least once an academic term, each teaching faculty member will be evaluated by students, with these student evaluations reviewed annually by the appropriate department chair.

The policy also provides for student complaint procedures, and public posting of complaints in student newspapers and university catalogs. At the request of Board member Robert Ruiz, the Board will be presented with a review of the program at the end of one year.

Board Approves Tax-Deferred Annuity Program Companies for FY88- As a result of a cooperative venture between representatives of the Board of Regents and the Board of Governors, the Board approved the six companies recommended by the BOG Systemwide Review Committee, to offer tax-deferred annuities in the BOG System. After compiling data from 24 respondents out of 46 companies surveyed, the Committee interviewed representatives from 10 companies, recommending the current providers of tax-deferred annuities be retained with no additional companies included on the approved list.

Legislative Report - FY88 Budget - In his report to the Board, Chancellor Layzell said, "The Board of Governors System has six percent fewer general revenue dollars for Fiscal Year 1988 (FY88) than it did in FY87. This reduction leaves no funds for salary increases for Board of Governors faculty and staff, whose salaries are already the furthest behind of any of the public university systems."

The impact of this reduction will be felt on the quality of BOG academic programs as faculty and staff find other opportunities over time. The impact of losing good faculty members from a department may not show up for two or more years down the road, but it will affect the quality of the program.

Summarizing the budget picture, Layzell said if the BOG System "simply wanted to get back to FY87 appropriation levels, it would require an additional 9 or 10 percent tuition increase, resulting in a 15 percent increase for the year. I do think, however, it is necessary for us to consider an additional tuition increase and I am suggesting that the presidents and I bring our recommendations on that point to you later in the Fall. Also, planning for FY89 is dependent on what has happened in FY88, and the presidents and I have just begun looking at our recommendations for FY89. In

Board of Governors of State Colleges and Universities System:
Chicago State University • Eastern Illinois University, Charleston • Governors State University,
University Park • Northeastern Illinois University, Chicago • and Western Illinois University, Macomb

September, we will be bringing to you FY89 recommendations which will have some FY88 projects included in them in order to keep moving on them."

BOG Chairman Nancy H. Froelich expressed her opinion on budget matters. "I think we all feel frustrated because we worked hard and vociferously for the need of a tax increase, and the legislature did not listen. On the whole, the sad part is that programs which really need more dollars invested in them are those which take the cut. It is really a tragedy of the times, and anything which can be done to demonstrate our need to the public, I, and I am sure the rest of the Board, stand behind our Chancellor."

Board Receives Review of BOG University Honors Programs - The Board received a review of honors programs in the BOG System compiled by Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Dr. Robert A. Pringle, and Assistant to the Vice Chancellor Carol Lanning. "The report which the Board accepted today on honors programs is further evidence of the diverse student body at these five universities. Students with high academic achievement are currently being well-served in our programs. BOG faculty and staff meet the needs of students with a broad range of abilities," said Chancellor Layzell.

According to a report released in April 1986, depending upon the university, between 10 and 50 percent of BOG students receive some form of special academic assistance for a portion of the time they are in college. Both EIU and WIU have developed honors programs which serve hundreds of deserving students each year. Northeastern has just implemented the first phase of what will become a university-wide honors program while CSU is currently engaged in planning an honors program. The College of Education honors program which GSU will begin this fall is commendable, and may serve as a bridge to a university-wide honors program in the future.

BOG Co-Sponsors Conference on Assistance to Rural Schools- Faculty and staff from the five BOG universities will be presentors at a fall conference to assist elementary and secondary school educators in delivering services to students and small school districts. The conference, titled Technology: A Vision for Rural and Small Schools, is sponsored by over 30 education and government organizations, including the BOG. Chairman Froelich commented on the conference. "These types of initiatives are important for rural schools. Some school districts are struggling in their search for new and inventive ideas in teaching methods."
