ENROLLMENT FIGURES...Female enrollment is increasing at GSU, while minority enrollment is holding steady.

Faculty and administrative staff statistics also reflect a good female and minority composition.

Current enrollment figures for GSU show a student population of 5,404. Of those, women make up 63 percent of non-campus students. From 1979 to 1982, female enrollment on-campus was a constant 55 percent. Since that time, the number of women on-campus has steadily increased. For example, enrollment of women on-campus in 1986 was 61.5 percent. Today it is 63 percent.

PAUL SCHWELLENBACH'S SPECIAL ON DELIVERIES...He might not wear the traditional U.S. Postal Service uniform, but Paul Schwellenbach is considered one of the best "mailmen" around GSU.

The March Employee of the Month has been carrying bags of GSU mail for 10 years, although now because of a promotion, he's only seen on campus sporadically as a replacement messenger.

Paul Schwellenbach

"This pleasant, energetic, conscientious young man has been sorting and delivering the mountains of mail that we receive individually and collectively, and carrying them off for delivery to the U.S. Post Office not only the mail that we generate for the university but also the bills and personal notes that we have to get out each day and neglect to drop in a mail box along the way," said Beverly Goldberg (IPPA/CBPA) who nominated Paul for this honor. "No job is too hard for him, no load too heavy, no weather too foul. He recognizes the importance of getting the mail through, and he performs his job cheerfully and efficiently."

Paul knows most of us on campus because he picked up our letters and parcels for six years as a mail messenger. Then he was promoted to mailing equipment operator, and nine months ago he was promoted to assistant mailing service supervisor.

"I see mail as a form of communication, and our job is to see that those special communications get to the addressee in a timely fashion," he said.

Paul knows the ins and outs of the U.S. Postal Service — including how to save money by presorting for zip code deliveries to get a 4-cent discount on the postage of each letter.

"The savings that we get, we are able to put into our department, and that helps reduce the service charges to the university departments," he said.

Paul's job is also one of saving time for university staff. Because of the labeling equipment he's operated, there's no need to individually place ream upon ream of labels on envelopes. Paul and his labeling machine can do that. And the inserter machine is a nother time-saver that bundles six items at a time and inserts them into envelopes.

Because of the volumes of mail this university puts out daily, the mail messengers have two pick-ups a day. The morning pick-up helps reduce the afternoon workload, although Paul says there are still times "when we scramble to get to the post office by 4:30."

His biggest customers are Special Programs, Conferences and Workshops and Admissions, although no department's requests are considered too small for service.

"It's the cooperation we get from the Print Shop, Central Stores and the GSU community that helps us get our job done and makes GSU look like a first-class operation," Paul says with special thanks.

Paul and his wife, Christie, are the proud parents of Evan, now 16 months. They live in Steger.

$$$ NOT ENOUGH FOR EDUCATION...GSU could find itself with a funding shortfall two years in a row if Gov. James Thompson's proposed 1989 fiscal budget for higher education is adopted.

This current fiscal year — which runs through June 30 — Governors State was underfunded by an estimated 7.8 percent based on the Illinois Board of Higher Education's projected costs. IBHE calculates a statewide average cost for each university based on the level of instruction, number of credit hours taken, and the state average cost per credit hour in each subject area.

"Our proposed budget for the coming fiscal year does not include a tuition increase because we are hopeful GSU will see an increase in future state revenues," Dr. Leo Goodman-Malamuth noted. "We are joining with other school officials — from all levels of education — in attempting to convince the public and our elected officials of our critical need for more funding. The state of Illinois is jeopardizing a 130-year tradition of supporting a competitive system of public higher education."

GSU is joining with 24 governing boards and state institutions of higher learning across Illinois that will begin an information campaign to let Illinoisans know the value and resources of its universities and colleges.
