FAZE FOCUS ON . . . RUDY STRUKOFF

If Rudy Strukoff has his way, music will ring from the GSU rafters this Spring, and another blow will be administered to the myth that the suburbs south of Chicago constitute a cultural wasteland. A newcomer to GSU last Fall as University Professor of Music, Dr. Strukoff has enthusiastically joined the University mainstream, in spite of a 90 mile commute each weekend to his home in Berrien Springs, Mich. His present projects include the forming of a GSU chorus and chamber music orchestra slated to perform Faure's "Requiem" and "Mass in G Major" by Franz Schubert in a premier program next April. (Attention GSU community: openings for singers and orchestra members still exist.) In addition, regular duties include teaching contemporary music theory, choral conducting, twentieth century music, music education, and the supervision of student teachers.

When asked about his initial impressions of GSU, Rudy expressed great admiration for the people he has worked with here: "down to earth, friendly, concerned on a one to one basis." He finds the unique educational process to be "superior in results . . . if you don't let the paperwork get you down." He especially likes the more direct contact with the students in all aspects of education.

He has some basis for comparison, bringing to GSU a broad educational and professional background. Born in Rostov, Russia, in 1935, he moved to Germany after the war and came to the United States in 1951, where he completed his education. He received a Bachelor of Music Education from Andrews University in Michigan; an M.M. in Voice and Choral Conducting and a Ph.D. in Voice, composition, and Music Literature from Michigan State. A published composer of vocal and instrumental chamber music, Dr. Strukoff has been in "Who's Who in America," and is a member of the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers; The American Choral Directors Assn.; and the National Assn. of Teachers of Singing.

A talented singer with a rich baritone voice, he has studied under Roger Wagner, Paul Salamunovich, Howard Swan, and Robert Shaw, with choral training and experience encompassing literature from Georgian chants to contemporary choral repertoire. He has also been minister of music to churches of various denominations. Dr. Strukoff has taught music at Michigan State, Andrews University, and Indiana State University.

While music occupies most of his waking hours, Rudy does find time for a varied array of hobbies. He is an accomplished cook, specializing in Russian and German recipes, and also enjoys painting, working mostly with acrylics in modern graphic design. He and his wife share an avid interest in antiques, with several old pieces in various stages of refurbishing. Currently, a lovely armoire circa 1880 is being restored. Speed reading methods have allowed him to increase his capacity for dispatching a weekly assortment of mysteries, adventures, and biographies. He is also the proud owner of a 914 Porsche, indication of a discriminating taste in foreign cars.

The Strukoff family, including wife Donna, a music teacher and mezzo soprano and their three sons, plan to relocate nearer GSU later this year.
